Electronic system would curb thefts

Library weighs theft detectors

The Arlington Heights Library Board is considering the purchase of an electronic theft-detection system to cut the number of book thefts.

The board Tuesday night discussed two electronic security systems where books must be desensitized before they are checked out or an alarm will sound. Library officials have been studying various methods of security, including door guards, since last July.

Frank Dempsey, executive librarian, said an investigation of other libraries using electronic systems indicated "that any system installed will be successful."

"Any system we would use would lead to a reduction in stolen books. It's a psychological deterrent," he said.

DEMPSEY SAID installation of the security systems had not caused any public relations problems in the librarys surveyed.

"Patron response ranged from enthusiasm to neutrality," he said.

Systems being studied by the library board include turnstyles at library exits and entrances and a set of electronic sensing bars. Sensitized markers would be placed in books and other library materials. Cost to the library could range from a minimum of $14,850 to $17,595 depending on the make and size of the unit.

Library officials decided to study various security measures this summer after a random inventory showed that book thefts averaged up to 12 per cent a year.

THE RANDOM INVENTORY showed an annual loss of 11 to 12 per cent for the nonfiction collection. Fiction books were not included in the figure and a library official said the figure "may not be accurate for the entire collection."

A 1974 inventory indicated that 18 per cent of the books purchased during a seven-year period were missing from the shelves. The highest loss was books on car repairs, mentally handicapped children and subjects such as photography and witch craft.

Home for elderly now multi-family

Single-family zoning seen for Magnus Farm

Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights officials are expected to ask the authority to rezone the 42-acre Magnus Farm for single-family development rather than retain its current multi-family zoning.

Officials from both villages met Tuesday morning to discuss future land use plans for the property, now a home for the elderly in unincorporated Elk Grove Township, in accordance with the county's effort to develop a comprehensive land use plan.

Another special meeting has been scheduled for Saturday by committees from both village boards to draft a formal property recommendation to be submitted before the county considers Elk Grove Township zoning at an Oct. 24 hearing.

Zoning for the property, owned by Alexander Magnus, 801 E. Central Rd., has been a major concern of both villages for some time. Although the land is located in unincorporated Elk Grove Township, it could be annexed by Mount Prospect or Arlington Heights. Both villages wish to agree on future zoning before either begins annexation action.

THE MAGNUS LAND is currently zoned R-5, which permits construction of 17 units per acre. Under the county's zoning revisions, the property would retain its current density.

Magnus' only concern is that he be permitted to build several four-story elevator buildings to house the aged without having to ask for special approval each time he builds or makes improvements.

"I would consider this to be a tremendous hardship," said Magnus. "I want the present zoning continued because I just can't go before the board for approval every time I make additions or improvements on the property."

While village officials do not object to the use of the property as a home for the aged or Magnus' plans to build elvator buildings, they do not want to see the farm developed for apartments at some future date.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS Village Planner Joe Kesler recommended the property be zoned R-4, single family, with a special use exception which would permit Magnus to proceed with his plans but prevent future developers from building high density housing units.

"This is the danger you run into with so much open space," said Kesler. "Mr. Magnus' plans could be accommodated with a special exception, but still be zoned single-family. This is what I would recommend."

Both Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Teichert and Arlington Heights Village Pres. James T. Ryan assured Magnus a special exception detailing use of the property as a home for the elderly would permit him to proceed with his plans.

Ryan said details of the recommendation to be worked out Saturday can be voted on by both village boards before the zoning hearing.

The Saturday meeting is scheduled for 9 a.m. in the Arlington Heights Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Man charged on drug count

Mount Prospect police arrested a Forest Park man Tuesday on charges he tried to use a forged prescription to make a purchase at a local pharmacy.

Arrested was Gregory A. Glos, 25, 122 Elgin Ave. Police said they received a tip of a man trying to buy some Ambenyl with a fake prescription at Doretti Pharmacy, 2 N. Main St., and arrested Glos inside the store.

He was charged with attempting a fraudulent drug purchase and was released on $1,000 bond pending a Nov. 26 appearance in the Mount Prospect branch of Circuit Court.

Prosecutor fired for moonlighting

by JOE SWICKARD

Richard D. Thomas was fired last week as Arlington Heights' village prosecutor for accepting a similar position in Palatine.

Arlington Heights Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said Thomas was asked to leave because Thomas, 28, was hired on a permanent part-time basis by Palatine in July.

"He was prosecuting for Palatine and he was told not to. He did it without asking first and when he was told not to, he did it anyway. He was expected to be a full-time employe, just like everyone else here, Hanson said.

Thomas said he was told in meeting last week with Hanson and Village Attorney Jack M. Siegel that his part-time work for Palatine was a conflict of interest.

"I DIDN'T THINK so," Thomas said. "They told me I would not be prosecuting for Palatine on Thursday. I thought about it and Wednesday night I decided to go ahead with it."

Thomas said he was entering private practice with offices in Palatine, and would continue to act as Palatine's prosecutor.

As assistant village attorney for Arlington Heights, Thomas was paid $18,942. His contract with Palatine calls for a $9,000 a year retainer.

Wendell E. Jones, Palatine Village president, said Thomas would remain a part-time employe and no plans existed to expand the position to full time.

"I don't know of any prosecutor that is full time," Jones said. "We recognize his work with us is on a part-time basis and it's not our concern what he does when he isn't working for us."

JONES SAID HE was unaware of any problems about Thomas' work for the two towns.

"This is the first I heard of the situation," he said.

Thomas was hired by Palatine in a surprise move by Jones after Roger Bjorvik, a political opponent of Jones who had been Palatine's prosecutor for 14 years, was suddenly ousted.

Bjorvik, attorney for the Palatine Park District, resigned as attorney for Palatine Township when Republicans captured control of the board of auditors.

Thomas' duties for Palatine include prosecuting village cases in circuit court and acting as attorney for the liquor commission and prosecutor for the fire and police commission.

HANSON SAID Wayne Silva will be acting prosecutor until a replacement for Thomas can be found. Silva was village prosecutor until he resigned in March 1974 to enter private practice in Park Ridge.

A replacement should be found in about 10 days, Hanson said.

3 juveniles charged in motorcycle theft

Palatine police have arrested three area youths for allegedly stealing a motorcycle and equipment recently from a van parked at Rohlwing Road and Northwest Highway.

A 15-year-old Buffalo Grove youth was arrested Monday. Friday, police arrested two 16-year-olds from Arlington Heights and Palatine.

Police said the youths stole the motorcycle valued at $1,300, plus helmets, jackets and tools from the van belonging to Pro Honda, Palatine.

The Arlington Heights and Palatine youths were released to the custody of their parents pending Juvenile Court action. The Buffalo Grove youth was released to his parents pending action by the police department's juvenile bureau.

High temperatures defy almanac

Sunny skies and record-high temperatures warmed Chicago and much of the country Tuesday, despite the predictions of the "Old Farmer's Almanac."

The editors of the almanac may laugh last, however, with showers scheduled to soak the Midwest today and pull a blanket of cold to Chicago.

Rain, rain, rain, the 183rd annual edition of the almanac predicted for much of October 1975. Although the almanac, which was started as a weather bible for farmers in 1792, predicted a "mild midweek" for mid-October, the almanac surrounded Oct. 15 with predictions of "very heavey

Heavy rain also is in the National Weather Service forecast for today.

"I have to say it, but the warm weather is ending," a spokesman for the weather service said.

Tuesday's 87-degree temperature topped the record of 86 set in 1897. The normal temperature for Oct. 14 is 66 degrees.

Temperatures throughout the country soared into the 80s Tuesday. The temperature Tuesday continued a Chicago-area heat wave which began last weekend. Monday's temperature was a record 88 degrees. The previous high was 83 degrees and was set in 1956.

A modest-sized crowd joined the Buffalo Grove High School marching band in greeting U.S. and Soviet astronauts at O'Hare Airport Tuesday morning.

Chicago is the first top on a good will tour that includes 12 U.S. cities, although the Russians were greeted Monday by President Gerald Ford in Washington, D. C.

The three American astronauts and two Soviet cosmonauts who participated in the Apollo-Soyuz international manned space flight July 15-24 will make several public appearances during their tour.

Their brief greeting at O'Hare was followed by a motorcade to State Street and Wacker Drive for the start of an official downtown parade. Chicago Mayor Richard Daley greeted the Russians and exchanged comments before the parade started.

Crowds cheered Alexei A. Leonov and Valeri N. Kubasov, and American astronauts Thomas P. Stafford, Vance D. Brand and Donald K. (Deke) Slayton as they toured State Street in open limousines.

LEONOV, SPEAKING English, told Daley "They talk about you as a very strong man."

Daley smiled, chuckled and responded, "We try."

Suburban residents who sought a glimpse of the famous space crews at O'Hare were rewarded for their efforts as the five men stepped down from the U.S. Navy jet, "City of New Orleans," and slowly walked toward their limousines.

Area woman, 53, struck by motorist

A Des Plaines woman walking her dog was killed early Tuesday when an automobile went out of control and left the roadway. Margaret L. Stankivsky, 53, of 309 Elk Blvd., was pronounced dead on arrival at Holy Family hospital, Des Plaines. Her white Samoyed dog also was killed in the accident. Des Plaines police plan to charge the driver of the auto, Dennis R. Drake, 29, of 363 Norman Ln., Wheeling, with involuntary manslaughter, reckless homicide and reckless conduct today. Drake told police his gas pedal stuck and he swerved to avoid hitting other cars at the intersection of Rand Road and Elk Boulevard. He is scheduled to appear in Des Plaines branch of Circuit Court Nov. 13.

Chicago Police arrested 15 women and eight men Tuesday in separate raids on five nude massage parlors, charging most of the persons with obscenity and violating "Burke's law." An ordinance that requires massage parlors to be licensed was proposed by Ald. Edward M. Burke and recently passed by the City Council. It took effect Tuesday. Four women and one man in the group were also charged with prostitution.

Man, 25, charged with murder

An anonymous tip led to the arrest of a Chicago man who police have charged with the April murder of a Palatine Township man in his home. Arthur Perez, 25, of 4359 S. Emerald Ave., was arrested and charged with the murder of Alfred L. Dinverno, 57, of 404 Inverdale Dr. Illinois State Police are seeking two accomplices in connection with the murder. Dinverno was found in his den bound and shot several times in the head. Police have theorized that he surprised his killers who were in the midst of robbing the 12-room house when he returned from an evening out with his daughter. Perez is scheduled to appear today in Niles District Court on the murder charge. He is being held in County Jail without bond.

Custody decision Thursday

Final arguments were heard Tuesday in a custody battle over two children that is scheduled to be decided Thursday. Thomas W. Eaton, 6, and his brother, Jeffry, 4, are the center of a custody battle between their mother, Karen Eaton, Jacksonville, Fla., and their paternal grandparents, Earl and Jean Eaton, 85 E. Dennis Rd., Wheeling. Mrs. Eaton gave up custody of the children to her husband when they were divorced in 1974. When her ex-husband was killed in a traffic accident she filed for custody as did the grandparents. James T. Ryan, attorney for the grandparents, argued it was in the best interest of the children to return them to the grandparents with whom they have been staying. He cited Mrs. Eaton's initial decision to give up custody and her lifestyle. Ernest Koehler, attorney for the mother, argued the court could not take away a mother's natural right to custody unless there were reasons to declare her unfit. Circuit Court Judge Raymond E. Trafelet will render a decision in the custody case at 11 a.m. Thursday.

With delay in revenue sharing

Massive tax increases forecast

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

A congressional delay in reenacting revenue-sharing legislation could force massive property tax increases in 26 states, including Illinois, an official of the National League of Cities warned Tuesday.

Alan Beals, executive vice president of the 15,000-member municipal organization, said the U.S. Congress must pass new revenue-sharing legislation by Nov. 15 to avoid possible interruption of funding to local governments.

"We've got some serious problems in the House," Beals said at a meeting of U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva's D-10th, Public Official Council in Glenview. At least two key members of the House Government Operations Committe which is reviewing revenue-sharing proposals opposed the current revenue-sharing act which expires next year, Beals said.

ANOTHER COMMITTEE member, U.S. Rep. L. H. Fountain, D-North Carolina, predicted at a hearing last week that the house will not reenact revenue sharing this year, Beals said.

If funding is not approved by the Nov. 15 cut off date, local officials will be forced to plan 1977 budgets without the money in many large states, Beals said.

"It's inconceivable to me that there will be a total cutoff of the funds," Mikva said.

Mikva, who favors reenactment of the program for 10 additional years, said Congress could pass a one-year interim plan which would continue revenue sharing at its current funding level.

But the revenue-sharing program now includes a $250 million yearly inflation increase which probably would not remain in an interim plan, Mikva said.

"It behooves us to buy a fire truck which we will get some good out of, and not depend on revenue sharing," Warren Burrmeister said.

Burrmeister, a Wilmette official, added that municipal officials that have used revenue sharing to pay for services like police and fire department salaries will be coerced to increase taxes to maintain staff levels if revenue-sharing funds run out.

FIVE NORTH Shore officials attended the meeting Tuesday with Beals. None of the officials were invited to attend a similar meeting this month with President Ford in Skokie. At the Skokie meeting Ford said he would support reenactment of the revenue-sharing program.

Beals said the National League of Cities is "concentrating" on the Senate finance committee to pass a revenue-sharing bill this year.

Senate passage of a revenue-sharing bill will "pressure reluctant House members into quick consideration of their reenactment program," he said.

If the legislation is not passed by Nov. 15, recently adopted House budget rules allow earliest passage in mid-May 1976, Beals said.

Immunization clinic Oct. 25 in Meadows

The Cook County Dept. of Public Health urges parents to take their children to be immunized against polio and other childhood diseases at a special clinic Oct. 25 in Rolling Meadows.

The immunization clinic, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Rolling Meadows High School, 2901 Central Rd., will serve children aged 1 through 18 from the north and northwest suburbs. Immunizations will be given for measles, rubella, polio, diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus.

"The percentage of young children immunized against such diseases as polio, measles and rubella has declined annually to the point where widespread epidemics are once again a serious threat," said Dr. John B. Hall, director of the health dept.

Hall said children should be immunized between one and five years of age. "People tend to delay immunization until the child approaches school age, leaving him vulnerable to disease during the first four or five years of life," he said. "It is this age group that will be hit hardest if epidemics occur."

No appointments are necessary at the special clinic. Parents should bring their children's previous immunization records. Rubella shots will not be given to girls who have reached the onset of menstruation.

Area woman, 53, struck by motorist

A Des Plaines woman walking her dog was killed early Tuesday when an automobile went out of control and left the roadway. Margaret L. Stankivsky, 53, of 309 Elk Blvd., was pronounced dead on arrival at Holy Family hospital, Des Plaines. Her white Samoyed dog also was killed in the accident. Des Plaines police plan to charge the driver of the auto, Dennis R. Drake, 29, of 363 Norman Ln., Wheeling, with involuntary manslaughter, reckless homicide and reckless conduct today. Drake told police his gas pedal stuck and he swerved to avoid hitting other cars at the intersection of Rand Road and Elk Boulevard. He is scheduled to appear in Des Plaines branch of Circuit Court Nov. 13.

Chicago Police arrested 15 women and eight men Tuesday in separate raids on five nude massage parlors, charging most of the persons with obscenity and violating "Burke's law." An ordinance that requires massage parlors to be licensed was proposed by Ald. Edward M. Burke and recently passed by the City Council. It took effect Tuesday. Four women and one man in the group were also charged with prostitution.

Man, 25, charged with murder

An anonymous tip led to the arrest of a Chicago man who police have charged with the April murder of a Palatine Township man in his home. Arthur Perez, 25, of 4359 S. Emerald Ave., was arrested and charged with the murder of Alfred L. Dinverno, 57, of 404 Inverdale Dr. Illinois State Police are seeking two accomplices in connection with the murder. Dinverno was found in his den bound and shot several times in the head. Police have theorized that he surprised his killers who were in the midst of robbing the 12-room house when he returned from an evening out with his daughter. Perez is scheduled to appear today in Niles District Court on the murder charge. He is being held in County Jail without bond.

Custody decision Thursday

Final arguments were heard Tuesday in a custody battle over two children that is scheduled to be decided Thursday. Thomas W. Eaton, 6, and his brother, Jeffry, 4, are the center of a custody battle between their mother, Karen Eaton, Jacksonville, Fla., and their paternal grandparents, Earl and Jean Eaton, 85 E. Dennis Rd., Wheeling. Mrs. Eaton gave up custody of the children to her husband when they were divorced in 1974. When her ex-husband was killed in a traffic accident she filed for custody as did the grandparents. James T. Ryan, attorney for the grandparents, argued it was in the best interest of the children to return them to the grandparents with whom they have been staying. He cited Mrs. Eaton's initial decision to give up custody and her lifestyle. Ernest Koehler, attorney for the mother, argued the court could not take away a mother's natural right to custody unless there were reasons to declare her unfit. Circuit Court Judge Raymond E. Trafelet will render a decision in the custody case at 11 a.m. Thursday.

With delay in revenue sharing

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

A congressional delay in reenacting revenue-sharing legislation could force massive property tax increases in 26 states, including Illinois, an official of the National League of Cities warned Tuesday.

Alan Beals, executive vice president of the 15,000-member municipal organization, said the U.S. Congress must pass new revenue-sharing legislation by Nov. 15 to avoid possible interruption of funding to local governments.

"We've got some serious problems in the House," Beals said at a meeting of U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva's D-10th, Public Official Council in Glenview. At least two key members of the House Government Operations Committe which is reviewing revenue-sharing proposals opposed the current revenue-sharing act which expires next year, Beals said.

ANOTHER COMMITTEE member, U.S. Rep. L. H. Fountain, D-North Carolina, predicted at a hearing last week that the house will not reenact revenue sharing this year, Beals said.

If funding is not approved by the Nov. 15 cut off date, local officials will be forced to plan 1977 budgets without the money in many large states, Beals said.

"It's inconceivable to me that there will be a total cutoff of the funds," Mikva said.

Mikva, who favors reenactment of the program for 10 additional years, said Congress could pass a one-year interim plan which would continue revenue sharing at its current funding level.

But the revenue-sharing program now includes a $250 million yearly inflation increase which probably would not remain in an interim plan, Mikva said.

"It behooves us to buy a fire truck which we will get some good out of, and not depend on revenue sharing," Warren Burrmeister said.

Burrmeister, a Wilmette official, added that municipal officials that have used revenue sharing to pay for services like police and fire department salaries will be coerced to increase taxes to maintain staff levels if revenue-sharing funds run out.

FIVE NORTH Shore officials attended the meeting Tuesday with Beals. None of the officials were invited to attend a similar meeting this month with President Ford in Skokie. At the Skokie meeting Ford said he would support reenactment of the revenue-sharing program.

Beals said the National League of Cities is "concentrating" on the Senate finance committee to pass a revenue-sharing bill this year.

Senate passage of a revenue-sharing bill will "pressure reluctant House members into quick consideration of their reenactment program," he said.

If the legislation is not passed by Nov. 15, recently adopted House budget rules allow earliest passage in mid-May 1976, Beals said.

Immunization clinic Oct. 25 in Meadows

The Cook County Dept. of Public Health urges parents to take their children to be immunized against polio and other childhood diseases at a special clinic Oct. 25 in Rolling Meadows.

The immunization clinic, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Rolling Meadows High School, 2901 Central Rd., will serve children aged 1 through 18 from the north and northwest suburbs. Immunizations will be given for measles, rubella, polio, diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus.

"The percentage of young children immunized against such diseases as polio, measles and rubella has declined annually to the point where widespread epidemics are once again a serious threat," said Dr. John B. Hall, director of the health dept.

Hall said children should be immunized between one and five years of age. "People tend to delay immunization until the child approaches school age, leaving him vulnerable to disease during the first four or five years of life," he said. "It is this age group that will be hit hardest if epidemics occur."

No appointments are necessary at the special clinic. Parents should bring their children's previous immunization records. Rubella shots will not be given to girls who have reached the onset of menstruation.

Ford unhurt as limousine rammed by Hartford auto

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — President Ford's limousine was struck by another car at an intersection in downtown Hartford as the Presidential motorcade headed toward the airport Tuesday night. The President was not hurt.

Witnesses said a light-colored car, apparently with a group of young people in it, struck the Presidential limousine at the corner of Market and Talcott Sts., about two blocks from where Ford had just addressed a fund-raising dinner.

Authorities said the passengers in the other car were taken to police headquarters for questioning.

Their automobile was heavily damaged, its front end smashed halfway back to the windshield.

The heavily armored limousine was only lightly damaged and continued on its way after only brief delay.

A reporter who witnessed the accident from a distance said it appeared Ford was quickly pushed to the floor by security aides until it could be determined whether the collision was an accident or an attempt to harm the President.

Apparently the presidential motorcade was proceeding as usual through red lights on Talcott St. when the other vehicle, which witnesses said had the green light, struck it in the right front fender at the intersection of Market St.

Ford's limousine, which is bullet-proof and is covered with reinforced steel, was slightly damaged. The front fender apparently was pressed against the wheel.

A pool reporter following the President said Secret Service agents immediately jumped from their support car and with their guns drawn surrounded the other vehicle. The limousine stopped for less than a minute before continuing the 15-mile trip to Bradley International Airport.

As Ford climbed the ramp to Air Force One, he did not appear injured in any way, the pool reporter said. No one left the presidential vehicle after the accident.

The car that struck the limousine was headed north on Market St., the city's main north-south road through the downtown area. Ford's car was headed east on Talcott St., a narrow side street, when the accident occurred. Hartford police took charge of the case after the Secret Service had determined the President was not injured.

While most of the White House press corps remained behind after the President took off to fly back to Washington, a report from Air Force One said that Frederick K. Biebel, Connecticut State Republican chairman who was riding with Ford to the airport, suffered a slight hand injury in the collision.

A Secret Service spokesman said "there was very slight damage to the presidential limousine."

The 20-minute ride from the airport to downtown Hartford four hours earlier had been made with heavy police security along two interstate routes the presidential limousine traveled. Traffic was stopped on Interstate 91 leading to the center of the city as the presidential motorcade entered the superhighway.

The overpasses along the route were cleared of traffic and passengers and solitary security forces stood on the bridges to make sure no one got on them.

Ford was in the Connecticut capital to address a Republican fund-raising dinner and to meet with party faithful at a $125 per person cocktail party.

WHILE MIDLANDS continued to bask in Indian summer sunshine, October storms kept highways in Yosemite Park closed with foot-deep snow. Donner Summit, in the Sierra, is covered with heaviest early snowfall since 1955 from storm which dumped 18 inches here at the 7,000-foot level last week. Atlanta teachers ordered back to school

A federal judge in Atlanta Tuesday ordered striking teachers and custodial workers back to their jobs for a 10-day negotiating period in an effort to end the first such walkout in the city's history. U. S. District Judge Newell Edenfield signed the order enjoining the walkout which began at the opening of classes Tuesday. Edenfield ordered the strikers back to work on Wednesday. The effectiveness of the strike was diluted by some non-strikers who crossed picket lines at Atlanta's 180 schools.

Bailey linked to jai alai case

Even as a portrait of the late Democratic national chairman John M. Bailey was being unveiled for Democratic party chiefs in Washington, it was disclosed Tuesday that a jai alai promoter said he gave Bailey $200,000 for helping obtain a Connecticut gambling license. Organized crime investigators said Bailey, who died April 10 of cancer at the age of 70, was named by David Friend of Hollywood, Fla., president of Connecticut Sports Enterprises Inc.

Custody of mutiny survivors sought

Indonesia and West Germany made formal application for custody of five survivors of an apparent mutiny and mass murder at sea, but immigration officials in Florida said Tuesday they still had made no decision on jurisdiction in the case. The four Indonesian seamen and a Filipino cook from the sunken Panamanian freighter Mimi remained at the West Palm Beach city jail, held under an Immigration Service charge of remaining illegally in the United States.

Ex-Marine frees 2 of 3 hostages

A heavily armed ex-Marine suspected of robbing a bank and killing a Nevada policeman took three hostages Tuesday at a Lake Tahoe resort beach club and freed two after negotiating with authorities. At the same time, officers agreed to the gunman's demand that a friend, a federal firearms agent, be flown to Lake Tahoe from San Diego to talk with him. About 50 police officers and FBI agents have the building surrounded.

Firefighters control Colorado blaze

Firefighters in Colorado Tuesday succeeded in controlling a $7 million fire which burned for three days and consumed 4,438 acres of aspen, spruce and pine in the White River National Forest. "The fire was brought under control about 4 p.m., but it is not completely out yet," Forest Service spokesman Gary Severson said.

White House drug study unveiled

De-emphasis of marijuana urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A White House study Tuesday recommended de-emphasis of marijuana laws and urged President Ford to intervene personally to settle disputes between feuding federal narcotics agencies.

Ford called the study a "realistic" assessment of national drug abuse problems and ordered his executive agencies to draft plans within 60 days for carrying out the report's recommendations.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said the timing of release of the report was unrelated to recent comments by Ford's son Jack on marijuana. Jack told an Oregon newspaper he had tried pot in college, and Ford later said he addmired his son's honesty in acknowledging the fact.

The study by a Domestic Council Drug Abuse Task Force recommended de-emphasizing marijuana in federal enforcement and treatment efforts and concentrating instead on such drugs as heroin, amphetamines and mixed barbiturates which "pose a greaer risk to the individual and society."

It said jurisdictional disputes and interagency rivalry between the Drug Enforcement Administration and the customs Service "hinders the effectiveness of the entire program to reduce the flow of drugs."

Ford last spring asked his chief government drug abuse advisers for a "frank appraisal" of the nature and extent of national drug problems. Their answer said drug abuse costs the nation up to $17 billion a year and may be an insoluble problem.

Complicating the problem are disputes between DEA and Customs over the development of narcotics intelligence, jurisdiction over aviation drug traffic, liaison with foreign customs agencies, operation of narcotics laboratories, and the questioning of persons arrested at borders, the report said.

Prompt resolution of these problems is essential, the panel told Ford. Since DEA and customs appear unable to resolve their differences, Ford should direct the attorney general and treasury secretary to settle the matter within three months, the report recommended.

If the dispute is still unsettled by Dec. 31, the task force said, Ford should personally put an end to it.

Among the panel's finding:

- Marijuana is the "most widely used illicit drug" in the country.
- The heroin situation is "ominous."
- Chronic, medically unsupervised use of amphetamines and barbiturates "probably ranks with heroin use as a major social problem."
- Cocaine is the new "in" drug.
- Use of LSD and other hallucinogens may still be as frequent as in recent years but there has been a definite decline in the number of hallucinogen-related medical problems.
- Surveys indicate about 7 per cent of junior and senior high school students may have inhaled chemical and other solvents once or twice.

Israeli troops shoot 2 shepherds

TEL AVIV, Israel UPI) — Israeli soldiers shot and killed two Syrian shepherds on the frontline of the occupied Golan Heights Tuesday in the first incident of its kind since the Middle East war of October, 1973, the military command reported.

The shooting occurred amid rising tension surrounding the renewal of the U.N. mandate on the Golan Heights next month and Syria's stepped-up contacts with the Soviet Union, which one Israeli official described as "ominous."

A military communique said the two shepherds were shot while guiding their sheep across the rocky terrain into a no-man's land near the fence marking the inner perimeter of Israeli-held territory.

It said the Israeli soldiers shouted warnings to halt and fired their guns into the air before shooting the two men, who were returned to Syria in a white U.N. vehicle.

"We can't allow shepherds or anyone who wants to to cross the frontier," a military source said.

It was the first reported incident of its kind within recent memory.

Earlier, Israeli officials expressed serious concern about Syrian President Hafez Assad's trip to Moscow last week and other signs of stepped up contacts between Syria and the Soviet Union.

"The whole thing is rather ominous for Israel and is certainly not a good development," one government source said.

"Israel has not been able to draw any conclusions about the visit except the guess that it may result in a greater supply of weapons and an increased coordination on political matters."

The officials said they did not expect the Soviet Union to block the renewal of the mandate of U.N. forces in the Sinai Peninsula, which expires Oct. 24, or on the Golan Heights, which runs out Nov. 30.

In Washington, meanwhile, Congress is expected to approve President Ford's anticipated requests for more economic and military aid to Israel but not without a critical look at U.S involvement in the Mideast, congressional aides predicted.

An Israeli embassy spokesman, similarly, asserted that support for Israel in Congress still appeared strong despite evidence during last week's debate on sending U.S. technicians to the Sinai that future backing would be neither automatic nor uncritical.

"Of course, we're not entirely happy with the way the debate went," the Israeli official said, "But I can say that Congress would not have passed a similar measure if it considered Pakistan and India. We do not feel there has been any kind of erosion of support."

Ford, in signing the resolution for sending 200 American technicians to the Sinai Friday, commented that Congress still had unfinished business in passing on future aid requests for the Middle East. He said he would consult with Congress on "what is required to sustain . . . our diplomatic efforts."

Decision striking down obscene phone call law let stand

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court Tuesday let stand a decision striking down Virginia's law against obscene telephone calls. Virginia had aruged this could jeopardize similar statutes in the other states.

The justices refused to interfere with a finding by the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals that the Virginia law was too broad and could infringe on rights of free speech.

The Court's denial of Virginia's appeal in the telephone case affects only that state's law. But Virginia said similar statutes are on the books in the remaining 49 states and that they could be placed in jeopardy.

The actual impact of the ruling will depend on the specific wording of each statute and whether it could be applied to conversation that is constitutionally protected.

Intelligence leaks worry Senate, House chairmen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The chairmen of Senate and House committees investigating intelligence activities are worried about disclosures of confidential information and are trying to plug the leaks, congressional sources said Tuesday.

There were suggestions that some of the unauthorized disclosures might be coming from administration sources in an oblique effort to show that neither the Senate nor House committees could not be trusted with confidential material.

But the evidence appears to point closer to home with indications that committee or staff members, piqued at the reluctance of the administration to release all the material it wants, were "going public" on their own through selected news leaks.

Rep. Otis Pike, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Select Committee on Intelligence, angrily told reporters last week "there has been a serious leak and I'm going to find out where."

He refused to say what it was about but reporters speculated it had to do with activities of the supersecret National Security Agency. Pike was out of town this week during the congressional recess.

On the Senate side, a spokesman said that committee chairman Frank Church D-Idaho, was also disturbed at leaks. His committee has been supplied a quantity of highly sensitive NSA documentation.

The Church committee was to have begun open hearings on NSA involvement in electronic surveillance of U.S. citizens last week but deferred the meetings at direct request of President Ford who said the panel was getting into a "very sensitive" area.

A two-man subcommittee comprising Sens. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., and Walter D. Huddleston, D-Ky., was appointed to "pursue with the executive branch" reasons why the NSA hearings cannot be held.

Still another "leak" involves private testimony last week about Patrice Lumumbu by Dr. Sidney Gottlieb, a former CIA scientist who was granted immunity for his appearance.

Bailey linked to jai alai case

Even as a portrait of the late Democratic national chairman John M. Bailey was being unveiled for Democratic party chiefs in Washington, it was disclosed Tuesday that a jai alai promoter said he gave Bailey $200,000 for helping obtain a Connecticut gambling license. Organized crime investigators said Bailey, who died April 10 of cancer at the age of 70, was named by David Friend of Hollywood, Fla., president of Connecticut Sports Enterprises Inc.

Custody of mutiny survivors sought

Indonesia and West Germany made formal application for custody of five survivors of an apparent mutiny and mass murder at sea, but immigration officials in Florida said Tuesday they still had made no decision on jurisdiction in the case. The four Indonesian seamen and a Filipino cook from the sunken Panamanian freighter Mimi remained at the West Palm Beach city jail, held under an Immigration Service charge of remaining illegally in the United States.

Ex-Marine frees 2 of 3 hostages

A heavily armed ex-Marine suspected of robbing a bank and killing a Nevada policeman took three hostages Tuesday at a Lake Tahoe resort beach club and freed two after negotiating with authorities. At the same time, officers agreed to the gunman's demand that a friend, a federal firearms agent, be flown to Lake Tahoe from San Diego to talk with him. About 50 police officers and FBI agents have the building surrounded.

Firefighters control Colorado blaze

Firefighters in Colorado Tuesday succeeded in controlling a $7 million fire which burned for three days and consumed 4,438 acres of aspen, spruce and pine in the White River National Forest. "The fire was brought under control about 4 p.m., but it is not completely out yet," Forest Service spokesman Gary Severson said.

White House drug study unveiled

De-emphasis of marijuana urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A White House study Tuesday recommended de-emphasis of marijuana laws and urged President Ford to intervene personally to settle disputes between feuding federal narcotics agencies.

Ford called the study a "realistic" assessment of national drug abuse problems and ordered his executive agencies to draft plans within 60 days for carrying out the report's recommendations.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said the timing of release of the report was unrelated to recent comments by Ford's son Jack on marijuana. Jack told an Oregon newspaper he had tried pot in college, and Ford later said he addmired his son's honesty in acknowledging the fact.

The study by a Domestic Council Drug Abuse Task Force recommended de-emphasizing marijuana in federal enforcement and treatment efforts and concentrating instead on such drugs as heroin, amphetamines and mixed barbiturates which "pose a greaer risk to the individual and society."

It said jurisdictional disputes and interagency rivalry between the Drug Enforcement Administration and the customs Service "hinders the effectiveness of the entire program to reduce the flow of drugs."

Ford last spring asked his chief government drug abuse advisers for a "frank appraisal" of the nature and extent of national d rug problems. Their answer said drug abuse costs the nation up to $17 billion a year and may be an insoluble problem.

Complicating the problem are disputes between DEA and Customs over the development of narcotics intelligence, jurisdiction over aviation drug traffic, liaison with foreign customs agencies, operation of narcotics laboratories, and the questioning of persons arrested at borders, the report said.

Prompt resolution of these problems is essential, the panel told Ford. Since DEA and customs appear unable to resolve their differences, Ford should direct the attorney general and treasury secretary to settle the matter within three months, the report recommended.

If the dispute is still unsettled by Dec. 31, the task force said, Ford should personally put an end to it.

Among the panel's finding:

- Marijuana is the "most widely used illicit drug" in the country.
- The heroin situation is "ominous."
- Chronic, medically unsupervised use of amphetamines and barbiturates "probably ranks with heroin use as a major social problem."
- Cocaine is the new "in" drug.
- Use of LSD and other hallucinogens may still be as frequent as in recent years but there has been a definite decline in the number of hallucinogen-related medical problems.
- Surveys indicate about 7 per cent of junior and senior high school students may have inhaled chemical and other solvents once or twice.

Israeli troops shoot 2 shepherds

TEL AVIV, Israel UPI) — Israeli soldiers shot and killed two Syrian shepherds on the frontline of the occupied Golan Heights Tuesday in the first incident of its kind since the Middle East war of October, 1973, the military command reported.

The shooting occurred amid rising tension surrounding the renewal of the U.N. mandate on the Golan Heights next month and Syria's stepped-up contacts with the Soviet Union, which one Israeli official described as "ominous."

A military communique said the two shepherds were shot while guiding their sheep across the rocky terrain into a no-man's land near the fence marking the inner perimeter of Israeli-held territory.

It said the Israeli soldiers shouted warnings to halt and fired their guns into the air before shooting the two men, who were returned to Syria in a white U.N. vehicle.

"We can't allow shepherds or anyone who wants to to cross the frontier," a military source said.

It was the first reported incident of its kind within recent memory.

Earlier, Israeli officials expressed serious concern about Syrian President Hafez Assad's trip to Moscow last week and other signs of stepped up contacts between Syria and the Soviet Union.

"The whole thing is rather ominous for Israel and is certainly not a good development," one government source said.

"Israel has not been able to draw any conclusions about the visit except the guess that it may result in a greater supply of weapons and an increased coordination on political matters."

The officials said they did not expect the Soviet Union to block the renewal of the mandate of U.N. forces in the Sinai Peninsula, which expires Oct. 24, or on the Golan Heights, which runs out Nov. 30.

In Washington, meanwhile, Congress is expected to approve President Ford's anticipated requests for more economic and military aid to Israel but not without a critical look at U.S involvement in the Mideast, congressional aides predicted.

An Israeli embassy spokesman, similarly, asserted that support for Israel in Congress still appeared strong despite evidence during last week's debate on sending U.S. technicians to the Sinai that future backing would be neither automatic nor uncritical.

"Of course, we're not entirely happy with the way the debate went," the Israeli official said, "But I can say that Congress would not have passed a similar measure if it considered Pakistan and India. We do not feel there has been any kind of erosion of support."

Ford, in signing the resolution for sending 200 American technicians to the Sinai Friday, commented that Congress still had unfinished business in passing on future aid requests for the Middle East. He said he would consult with Congress on "what is required to sustain . . . our diplomatic efforts."

Decision striking down obscene phone call law let stand

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court Tuesday let stand a decision striking down Virginia's law against obscene telephone calls. Virginia had aruged this could jeopardize similar statutes in the other states.

The justices refused to interfere with a finding by the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals that the Virginia law was too broad and could infringe on rights of free speech.

The Court's denial of Virginia's appeal in the telephone case affects only that state's law. But Virginia said similar statutes are on the books in the remaining 49 states and that they could be placed in jeopardy.

The actual impact of the ruling will depend on the specific wording of each statute and whether it could be applied to conversation that is constitutionally protected.

Intelligence leaks worry Senate, House chairmen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The chairmen of Senate and House committees investigating intelligence activities are worried about disclosures of confidential information and are trying to plug the leaks, congressional sources said Tuesday.

There were suggestions that some of the unauthorized disclosures might be coming from administration sources in an oblique effort to show that neither the Senate nor House committees could not be trusted with confidential material.

But the evidence appears to point closer to home with indications that committee or staff members, piqued at the reluctance of the administration to release all the material it wants, were "going public" on their own through selected news leaks.

Rep. Otis Pike, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Select Committee on Intelligence, angrily told reporters last week "there has been a serious leak and I'm going to find out where."

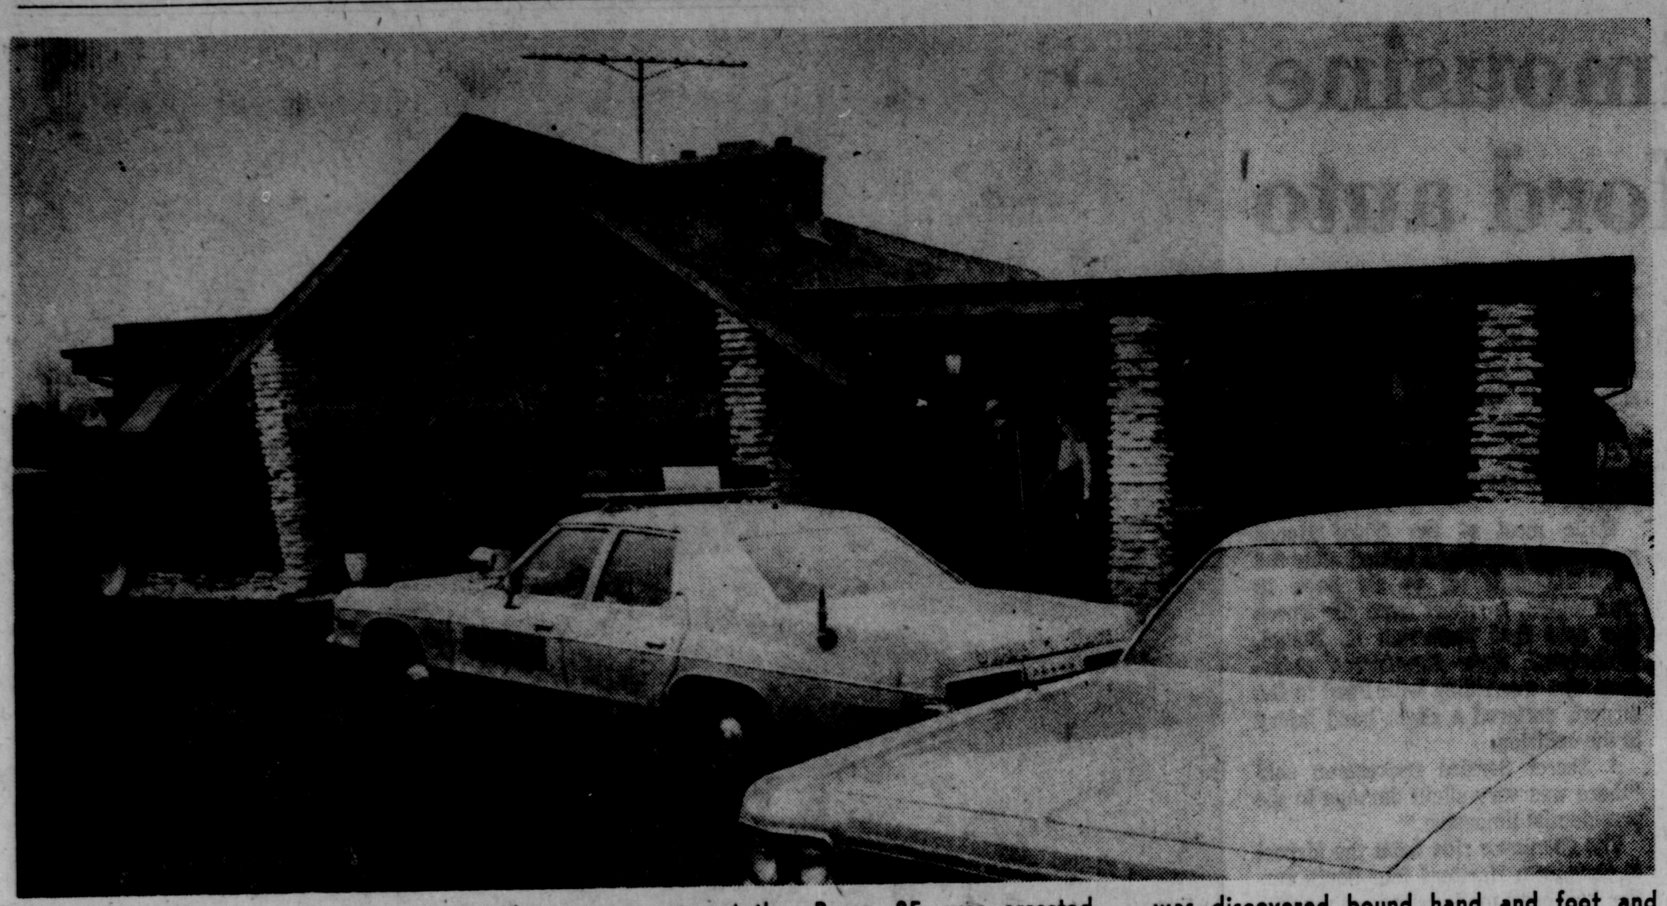
He refused to say what it was about but reporters speculated it had to do with activities of the supersecret National Security Agency. Pike was out of town this week during the congressional recess.

On the Senate side, a spokesman said that committee chairman Frank Church D-Idaho, was also disturbed at leaks. His committee has been supplied a quantity of highly sensitive NSA documentation.

The Church committee was to have begun open hearings on NSA involvement in electronic surveillance of U.S. citizens last week but deferred the meetings at direct request of President Ford who said the panel was getting into a "very sensitive" area.

A two-man subcommittee comprising Sens. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., and Walter D. Huddleston, D-Ky., was appointed to "pursue with the executive branch" reasons why the NSA hearings cannot be held.

Still another "leak" involves private testimony last week about Patrice Lumumbu by Dr. Sidney Gottlieb, a former CIA scientist who was granted immunity for his appearance.



THE SECLUDED home of murder victim Alfred L. Dinverno, Palatine Township. A Chicago man, Arthur Perez, 25, was arrested and charged with the crime. Dinverno, 57, was discovered bound hand and foot and shot in the head. Other arrests are expected.

Charged with Dinvernno shooting

Palatine murder suspect caught

by JOE SWICKARD

A 25-year old Chicago man has been arrested for the April murder of a Palatine Township man in his home.

Arrested was Arthur Perez, 25, of 4359 S. Emerald Ave., Chicago. He is charged with the April 21 murder of Alfred L. Dinverno, 57, of 404 Inverdale Dr.

Det. John Nebergall, of the Illinois State Police, said Perez was arrested after police received an anonymous tip Monday night.

CHICAGO POLICE homicide investigators, accompanied by Nebergall and Det. Daniel DiSantis, arrested Perez on an outstanding traffic warrant.

Perez was reportedly wearing a ring taken from Dinverno at the time of his arrest.

Nebergall said two accomplices are being sought in connection with the killing. He said he expected arrests shortly.

Perez reportedly met his victim one time prior to the crime, police said.

Nebergall said the murder weapon, believed to be a pistol, has not been recovered.

PEREZ IS BEING held in the county jail without bond. He is scheduled to appear today in Niles District Court on the murder charge.

The body of Dinverno, who lived alone in the sprawling 12-room house, was found in his den. He had been bound hand and foot and shot several times in the head.

The body was discovered by police after they were summoned to the house by his daughter.

The daughter, Diane Walsh, became concerned after being unable to reach her father by telephone for several days. Mrs. Walsh, of Itasca, called police from a neighbor's house after finding her father's white Corvette parked in the driveway and the garage door open.

DINVERNO HAD recently sold the house and was in the process of packing when he was killed.

Police theorized that he was surprised by his killers when he returned home from an evening out with his daughter and son-in-law.

The house had been ransacked and several weapons and items of jewelry were reported missing, although a complete inventory was difficult because of the impending move and a recent house sale.

Police said that Dinverno was apparently bound while the house was searched. He was shot as they left, police speculate.

POLICE SAID neighbors reported hearing several shots the day before the body was found. However, police said the area abounds with hunters and target shooters.

The Dinverno house is set back about 50 yards from Florence Avenue on a gravel drive. It was screened from the road by a wooded thicket.

Dinverno had recently retired from the cartage business when he was killed. He had planned to open a restaurant in Lake County.

He had owned a restaurant and bantery to bypass the site.

In addition, because the cemetery was never deeded to the county for maintenance, Muldowney agreed to ask Meadow Edge developer Edward Zale to turn over the one-acre site to the city.

For some reason, however, the outcome of that discussion was never passed on to the tree-clearing crews that began working in September, doing what Wolfrum described as "irreparable damage" to the cemetery.

Muldowney claims Wolfrum should have fenced off the cemetery to keep out the bulldozers and said he recalls Wolfrum saying this was part of his responsibility to the township. Wolfrum said he understood Muldowney and other city officials to say they would take care of everything.

"We thought from June to September that he was doing research out there and had staked off the cemetery," Muldowney said. "We're really sorry this occurred, but I think it was miscommunication more than anything else."

WOLFRUM SAID HE feels "the least the city could do" is to provide some type of crane and a few men to help him sort through the piles of logs and construction debris to search for pieces of tombstones. He estimated that it would probably take less than a day to sift through the rubble.

"Rolling Meadows should never have let this happen," he said. "It seems to me they would do everything they could to make some gesture to help recover those stones. There's no way the damage can be undone, but let's recover what we can. It's part of our historical record."

Wolfrum said nearly a month ago he wrote a letter to Mayor Roland J. Meyer requesting help in searching for the tombstones, but has not received a reply.

Muldowney said the letter was passed on to him and added that he intends to take the request to the city council's public works, building and zoning committee meeting Tuesday night.

"We were happy to cooperate with him (Wolfrum) and that's why we took the cemetery in the first place," Muldowney said. "All I can say is that we're sorry and we'll see what we can do about clearing the site."

Apartment project investigation delayed

Arlington Heights officials have delayed their investigation of alleged lack of village approval for Frenchmen's Cove apartment complex.

The legal committee of the board of trustees called for a one-week postponement of today's scheduled meeting in order to finish a report and give members enough time to review it.

Trustee Alice Harms said she has compiled 18 hand-written pages tracing the history of the Edward Schwartz and Co. development through village commissions and boards.

Preliminary findings of the investigation show that the development, on Dundee Road between Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights roads, was never formally approved by the village trustees as required by state statute.

Mrs. Harms said her report must be typed and distributed to committee members.

Trustee David Griffin, committee chairman, said Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel will be asked to comment on the report and meet with the committee next week.

Schools

Dist. 214 school closings topic of meeting Nov. 3

The possible closing of one or two Dist. 214 high schools will be discussed by the board of education in a committee-of-the-whole meeting Nov. 3.

At its first committee meeting on the subject last week the board received figures from the Dist. 214 administration showing an anticipated enrollment drop of about 22 per cent by 1983 — a loss of 4,363 students.

The board is now considering whether it can afford to maintain all eight of its high schools or whether it should close one or two schools.

ON NOV. 3 THE board will take another look at the enrollment and financial projections and may begin to set criteria for deciding which school or schools may close.

If the board decides not to close a school, it must analyze the cost of maintaining all facilities at below maximum enrollment and consider changes in boundaries to spread the district's enrollment among eight buildings.

If the board chooses to close one or two schools, it must decide which schools to close, when they would close and what boundary changes would be necessary, and must establish a method for phasing out the buildings. Supt. Edward Gilbert has suggested if a school must close, it should be phased out graduaally by eliminating the freshman class the first year.

ENROLLMENT IS projected to drop from 19,823 students this year to 15,460 by the 1983-84 school year. Hersey High School is expected to lose 1,027 students; Arlington, 816; Prospect, 791; Elk Grove, 731; Forest View, 663; Rolling Meadows 638 and Wheeling, 45. Buffalo Grove High School is projected to increase by 404 students by 1983.

Dist. 214's declining enrollment problem is further complicated by its financial situation. The district is expected to have an $11.5 million deficit budget in five years if the formula used to figure state aid is not revised.

THE FORMULA REQUIRES the district to roll back its tax rate from the current rate of $2.04 cents per $100 in assessed valuation to $1.13 in six years. A number of school administrators in the state are trying to persuade Gov. Daniel Walker to change the formula or eliminate the roll-back provision.

Dist. 214 school closings topic of meeting Nov. 3

The possible closing of one or two Dist. 214 high schools will be discussed by the board of education in a committee-of-the-whole meeting Nov. 3.

At its first committee meeting on the subject last week the board received figures from the Dist. 214 administration showing an anticipated enrollment drop of about 22 per cent by 1983 — a loss of 4,363 students.

The board is now considering whether it can afford to maintain all eight of its high schools or whether it should close one or two schools.

ON NOV. 3 THE board will take another look at the enrollment and financial projections and may begin to set criteria for deciding which school or schools may close.

If the board decides not to close a school, it must analyze the cost of maintaining all facilities at below maximum enrollment and consider changes in boundaries to spread the district's enrollment among eight buildings.

If the board chooses to close one or two schools, it must decide which schools to close, when they would close and what boundary changes would be necessary, and must establish a method for phasing out the buildings. Supt. Edward Gilbert has suggested if a school must close, it should be phased out graduaally by eliminating the freshman class the first year.

ENROLLMENT IS projected to drop from 19,823 students this year to 15,460 by the 1983-84 school year. Hersey High School is expected to lose 1,027 students; Arlington, 816; Prospect, 791; Elk Grove, 731; Forest View, 663; Rolling Meadows 638 and Wheeling, 45. Buffalo Grove High School is projected to increase by 404 students by 1983.

Dist. 214's declining enrollment problem is further complicated by its financial situation. The district is expected to have an $11.5 million deficit budget in five years if the formula used to figure state aid is not revised.

THE FORMULA REQUIRES the district to roll back its tax rate from the current rate of $2.04 cents per $100 in assessed valuation to $1.13 in six years. A number of school administrators in the state are trying to persuade Gov. Daniel Walker to change the formula or eliminate the roll-back provision.

Mother or grandparents?

Boys' custody ruling Thursday

by LUISA GINNETTI

Six-year-old Thomas William Eaton and his four-year-old brother Jeffry waited patiently Tuesday morning outside a 19th-floor Civic Center courtroom, unaware of the battle raging within to determine their future.

The boys are the center of controversy in a harsh custody battle between their mother, Karen Eaton of Jacksonville, Fla., and their paternal grandparents Earl and Jean Eaton, of 85 East Dennis Rd., Wheeling.

By Tuesday, after four days of testimony, all the facts in the case had been presented. Circuit Court Judge Raymond E. Trafelet is expected to rule on the boys' future Thursday at 11 a.m.

The younger Mrs. Eaton, 24, divorced from the boys' father Thomas W., filed suit for cusody of the children when her ex-husband was killed in a traffic accident in the village this summer.

THE EATONS were divorced in May, 1974, in Florida, and at the time Mrs. Eaton agreed to give up custody of the chidren to her husband. The boys have been living with their grandparents since several months prior to the divorce.

The Eaton grandparents also have filed suit for custody of the children, charging the boys' mother has given up her rights to them.

The closing arguments were blunt and pointed as attorney James T. Ryan, Arlington Heights village president and counsel for the senior Eatons, and Ernest Koehler, representing Mrs. Eaton, offered differing interpretations of the mother's character and fitness to serve as a parent.

Ryan said the court does not have to determine Mrs. Eaton's fitness as a mother but instead must decide what is best for the children.

HE SAID FOUR considerations must be weighed in the case: Karen Eaton's decision at the time of her divorce to give up custody of the children; her lifestyle following the divorce; if there has been any change in that lifestyle, and how she intends to support her sons.

Ryan cited testimony from a psychologist who counseled Mrs. Eaton before her divorce and agreed with her decision to forfeit custody of the children because she "could not cope with them."

The attorney also cited accounts brought up in the trial of Mrs. Eaton's affairs with other men, both while she was married and after her divorce, as factors to consider. Ryan also said Mrs. Eaton was unable to show overt acts of love and affection to her sons and made no attempt to contact them for months after the divorce.

Ryan said testimony has proven Mrs. Eaton has not changed and feels no remorse or guilt about her past. The attorney also referred to Mrs. Eaton's work as a bartender in a topless restaurant as a factor against her.

"I am not making any judgments, but it appears clear that there has been no change in the constancy of Karen Eaton's lifestyle," Ryan said. "If something has been brought out in this trial it's the fact that it's so crystal clear as to the kind of people the (senior) Eatons are."

RYAN SAID THE grandparents' ages (both are 52) ahould not be held against them. 'The Eaton home has been a gathering place for children," Ryan said. Four children were raised in their home and they have been active in the Little League and their church, he said.

The attorney concluded Mrs. Eaton should not be awarded custody of her children because their future would be better served by their grandparents.

"A mother can lose her natural rights by her unnatural conduct," he said.

Mrs. Eaton and her mother, Hope Burke, sat quietly during Ryan's remarks, sometimes clutching hands while the elder Eatons also listened intently, showing little emotion.

Koehler said Mrs. Eaton did not deny testimony brought up in the trial about her past, but the attorney said she has changed and she loves and wants her sons.

"Legally and morally the natural parent has the best interest of the children at heart," Koehler said. "Giving custody to the grandparents is making them orphans. Karen gave up custody of her children to her husband, not her in-laws," he said.

KOEHLER SAID THE courts cannot take way a mother's custody right unless there are "clear and compelling reasons" to justify her being declared unfit.

Neither the Eatons nor their ex-daughter-in-law had any comment after the hearing, but Mrs. Burke said she was proud of her daughter. "She loves the children."

Eaton is a sheet-metal worker, and his wife worked as a record clerk at Wheeling High Schol for 11 years until last week. She quit her job to take care of her grandchildren.

Mrs. Burke lives across the street from the Eatons at 100 East Dennis Rd.

Ryan also said Mrs. Eaton was unable to show overt acts of love and affection to her sons and made no attempt to contact them for months after the divorce.

Ryan said testimony has proven Mrs. Eaton has not changed and feels no remorse or guilt about her past. The attorney also referred to Mrs. Eaton's work as a bartender in a topless restaurant as a factor against her.

"I am not making any judgments, but it appears clear that there has been no change in the constancy of Karen Eaton's lifestyle," Ryan said. "If something has been brought out in this trial it's the fact that it's so crystal clear as to the kind of people the (senior) Eatons are."

RYAN SAID THE grandparents' ages (both are 52) ahould not be held against them. 'The Eaton home has been a gathering place for children," Ryan said. Four children were raised in their home and they have been active in the Little League and their church, he said.

The attorney concluded Mrs. Eaton should not be awarded custody of her children because their future would be better served by their grandparents.

"A mother can lose her natural rights by her unnatural conduct," he said.

Mrs. Eaton and her mother, Hope Burke, sat quietly during Ryan's remarks, sometimes clutching hands while the elder Eatons also listened intently, showing little emotion.

Koehler said Mrs. Eaton did not deny testimony brought up in the trial about her past, but the attorney said she has changed and she loves and wants her sons.

"Legally and morally the natural parent has the best interest of the children at heart," Koehler said. "Giving custody to the grandparents is making them orphans. Karen gave up custody of her children to her husband, not her in-laws," he said.

KOEHLER SAID THE courts cannot take way a mother's custody right unless there are "clear and compelling reasons" to justify her being declared unfit.

Neither the Eatons nor their ex-daughter-in-law had any comment after the hearing, but Mrs. Burke said she was proud of her daughter. "She loves the children."

Eaton is a sheet-metal worker, and his wife worked as a record clerk at Wheeling High Schol for 11 years until last week. She quit her job to take care of her grandchildren.

Mrs. Burke lives across the street from the Eatons at 100 East Dennis Rd.

$23,000 fee for Speer

Harper hires bond consultant

The Harper College Board of Trustees agreed Tuesday to pay $23,000 to Paul D. Speer and Associates, Inc. to help the college sell $12 million in building bonds authorized by the voters last month.

The board made the decision even though Speer's fee is about $12,000 higher than prices quoted by other bond consultants.

The board heard presentations from Speer and three other bond consultants before making its decision.

PAUL D. SPEER, president of the firm, told the board the firm's reputation could help increase the college's credit rating from its current rate of A to at least A-1 or AA. The improved rating would lower the interest rate the college will pay on its bonds.

Speer said, "Because of the work we do our fees are higher than other firms but a Cadillac is also more expensive than a Chevy."

Board members unanimously agreed to hire Speer. Board member Robert Rausch said the $12,000 difference between Speer's fee and that of other consultants "pales into insignificance" when the college considers the cost savings an AA bond rating would mean.

Rousch said, "He (Speer) will give us the best shot at the AA rating and getting that is the best way we can serve the taxpayers."

ALL FOUR BOND consultants said the college's bond sale will be affected by the problems in the market caused by New York City's financial difficulties.

However, consultants disagreed markedly on whether the college should delay selling bonds in hope the bond market would improve.

William Seiple of Illinois Schools Consulting Service said, "My suggestion to you is to move ahead on selling bonds. People I've talked to in this business say the market won't get any better."

However, an official of Continental Illinois National Bank said, "It's hard to predict anything but an improved bond market. My advice to you is don't sell bonds a moment sooner than you absolutely have to."

Speer said, "The market is much worse than it has ever been before, but I don't think interest rates will get much lower very soon."

HE ADDED, "I think the best thing that could happen to the municipal bond market is for New York City to default. Once that's out of the way people can concentrate on the real value of municipal bonds."

Speer suggested the board sell the $2 million in bonds needed immediately to buy a second site for the college with a payment schedule lasting less than 20 years and to sell the remaining $10 million of the bond issue later with a 20-year maturity.

He said selling the $2 million in bonds now for a relatively short time "would be a fine opportunity. You could get a very good interest rate doing that."

Cultural center

by STIRLING MORITA

Four years ago, Woodfield was thought to be just another mammoth shopping center. Now, the image has changed. It is fast becoming the cultural focal point for the Northwest suburbs.

The opera, the Chicago Symphony, you name it — it will probably be staged on the red carpet of the Grand Court.

"We find our audience is demanding it. They ask, 'Can you bring out the opera? Can you bring out the ballet. We'd love to take the kids downtown, but it is too far," said Ruby Ruppert, public relations director for the Schaumburg shopping center.

And that is what the massive shopping center is doing in preparation for its fourth anniversary, starting Thursday. Featured will be the Chicago Opera Studio; Galen, popular pianist; and university debate teams.

"What we're trying to do is satisfy their needs," Mrs. Ruppert said. "Do more than make the almighty dollar."

THE TURNING POINT for the shopping center was probably Oct. 2, 1974, when maestro Henry Mazer led the Chicago Symphony through a rousing musical program before an estimated 40,000 persons.

And Mrs. Ruppert thinks stars of the "Four Star" anniversary program will draw heavily. The opera studio will perform "The Marriage of Figaro" for one of the first times in English at 9 p.m. Thursday.

A Channel 11 television crew will videotape the debate on "Should the CIA Be Abolished?" between the Universities of Chicago and Illinois at 9 p.m. Friday.

And Galen's performances at 6:30 p.m. Saturday and 6 p.m. Sunday promise to draw a big crowd. He drew 15,000 in Chicago, Mrs. Ruppert said. And as usual the children will not be ignored. Minnie and Mickey Mouse will be on hand Saturday with special birthday gifts for youngsters.

ONE THING has changed about the programs — time of performances. She said people have requested starting times be pushed back to allow them time to get home from work and relax before going to the performances.

And local communities won't be snubbed. Woodfield will continue to provide the space for local programs as it has for Girl Scout and other programs.

In the past, it has not been unusual to stroll through the mall petting deer, watching hot-dog skiers on a man-made slope, seeing a 1937 Packard coupe formerly owned by Gen. George Patton or peering at the third millionaire named in the Illinois State Lottery.

ALMOST NO WEEKEND goes by without a camper show, flower display or a sports demonstration.

Mrs. Ruppert said shopping center officials hope to exhibit $25 million worth of artifacts from Mexico at the end of October and early November.

The shopping center budget to pay for programs and advertising is $250,000 a year, but it still is not enough. Public and private enterprises have to chip in, too.

But in all, Woodfield has changed a philosophy in luring shoppers. Not bad for a facility that drew its name from a combination of Gen. Wood, head of Sears Roebuck and Co., and Marshall Field and Co.

COUNT ALMAVIVA and his countess will appear Thursday at the Woodfield mall when the Chicago Opera Studio presents "The Marriage of Figaro" in the Grand Court. The opera, to be presented in English, will begin anniversary activities planned all this week at the mall.

Two camporees attract 700 Scouts from area

Nearly 700 Scouts from six communities took part in a variety of activities last weekend in two camporees.

Scouts from Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village and Mount Prospect started their camporee Friday at the Big Ben Woods in Des Plaines. The group had selected a pioneering theme for their activities.

Dale Postlewaite, camporee chairman, said the Scouts took part in tower building, log toss, bridge building, compass reading and mapping events during the three day program.

Scouts from Buffalo Grove, Wheeling and Prospect Heights started their Minuteman Camporee Friday at Camp Alphonse in the Deer Grove Forest Preserve.

Bill Canfield, chairman for that event, said the activities stressed basic scouting skills.

"The colonial minutemen pledged to be ready at a minute's notice, therefore all competitive problems will be based on basic skills that won't be announced until Scouts arrive at the problem," he added.

Proficiency awards were given at the end of the camporee.

Cultural center

by STIRLING MORITA

Four years ago, Woodfield was thought to be just another mammoth shopping center. Now, the image has changed. It is fast becoming the cultural focal point for the Northwest suburbs.

The opera, the Chicago Symphony, you name it — it will probably be staged on the red carpet of the Grand Court.

"We find our audience is demanding it. They ask, 'Can you bring out the opera? Can you bring out the ballet. We'd love to take the kids downtown, but it is too far," said Ruby Ruppert, public relations director for the Schaumburg shopping center.

And that is what the massive shopping center is doing in preparation for its fourth anniversary, starting Thursday. Featured will be the Chicago Opera Studio; Galen, popular pianist; and university debate teams.

"What we're trying to do is satisfy their needs," Mrs. Ruppert said. "Do more than make the almighty dollar."

THE TURNING POINT for the shopping center was probably Oct. 2, 1974, when maestro Henry Mazer led the Chicago Symphony through a rousing musical program before an estimated 40,000 persons.

And Mrs. Ruppert thinks stars of the "Four Star" anniversary program will draw heavily. The opera studio will perform "The Marriage of Figaro" for one of the first times in English at 9 p.m. Thursday.

A Channel 11 television crew will videotape the debate on "Should the CIA Be Abolished?" between the Universities of Chicago and Illinois at 9 p.m. Friday.

And Galen's performances at 6:30 p.m. Saturday and 6 p.m. Sunday promise to draw a big crowd. He drew 15,000 in Chicago, Mrs. Ruppert said. And as usual the children will not be ignored. Minnie and Mickey Mouse will be on hand Saturday with special birthday gifts for youngsters.

FBI DOG handler Bill Schiavo takes a break with his German Shepherd, Drux, during the search for the last escaped convict from the Marion maximum security penitentiary.

One fugitive still at large

Escaped con caught in Indiana

SALEM, Ill. (UPI) — Henry M. Gargano, reputed ringleader of a sophisticated breakout from the Marion, Ill., federal penitentiary, was captured Tuesday as he trudged, sick and footsore, along railroad tracks in southwest Indiana.

The convicted killer of two Chicago policemen was picked up by two sheriff's deputies near Bloomfield, about 100 miles east of the wooded area near Salem where three other members of the "extremely dangerous" fugitive band were cornered and seized earlier this week.

"I'm the guy you are looking for," Gargano told the deputies after they disputed his story that he was just "a fella kind of down on his luck from Elnora, Ind."

HE SAID HE HAD just jumped off a freight train near Linton, Ind., a short distance from Bloomfield. He also was quoted as saying he split up with another man near Linton, immediately touching off another search in that area.

The new search was based on the chance that the other man might be the last fugitive still at large, Dennis D. Hunter, 23, Salem, Ohio, who is serving a 25-year term for kidnaping, assault on a federal officer and escape.

Other Indiana authorities however, said Gargano told them he had not seen Hunter since Sunday and the search for him was still concentrated in woods and along railroad tracks in the Salem area.

FBI Speical Agent Victor Schaefer confirmed in Salem that the Bloomfield captive was Gargano.

GREENE COUNTY, Ind., Sheriff Orville Byers said Gargano was bearbearded, shabby, and carrying to lock picks. But he was unarmed, offered no resistance, and cooperated after his attempt at an alias failed, Byers said.

"The man gave us his name," Byers said. "He said he was Gargano. He gave us his date of birth. His clothing checked out, The place he was born . . . everything checked out.

"He said he's sick and he's tired and he would like to get back to the infirmary in the prison at Marion."

The Greene County deputies went out to pick up a man they thought was a drifter after receiving a call from the secretary of a coal company that a shabby but "very polite" stranger had been by, asking for water and directions.

DEPUTY Bill Collins and a companion found Gargano west of town. When the man told him he was a down-and-outer from Elnora, Collins demanded that he name some people from that town. It was at this point, Collins said, that Gargano said, "I'm the guy you are looking for."

Gargano, 43, was serving a 199-year term at the maximum security prison for the bank robbery slayings of two policemen.

There was no immediate word as to how Gargano had managed to slip through the Illinois dragnet and flee so far from Salem.

Authorities at Salem ordered a grade school closed Tuesday and bus routes to other schools were changed to keep children safe from being taken hostage.

Mikva hedging on endorsement of Walker

U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva will not automatically endorse Gov. Daniel Walker in a contested primary election unless there is a clear effort to replace the governor with a candidate conrolled by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley.

Mikva, who in August predicted that Walker would not face a primary fight, said Monday he would support Walker in the primary "because I think it's healthy to have more than one center of power in our party."

However, Mikva said that if State Treasurer Alan Dixon and Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan both run against Walker in the primary "it would be a wholly different picture" because at least one of the challengers would be independent of Daley.

He indicated he would be particularly favorable to Dixon, if "Al (Dixon) continues to run his own campaign."

An aide to Mikva said Mikva "has no plans to get actively involved in the gubernatorial primary. As long as Dixon continues to run as his own candidate the congressman will stand back and let the best man win."

In August, Mikva said he did not believe there would be a Democratic primary fight for the governorship and said unequivocally that he would support Walker in the general election.

Since then, Dixon has officially entered the race against Walker and has said he will remain in the race even if the regular Democratic organization loyal to Daley endorses someone else.

Hartigan has figured in speculation that he may run for governor with Daley's backing. Hartigan has not yet announced his intentions.

ACLU files suit against police group

The American Civil Liberties Union Tuesday filed a $1.25 million damage suit in U. S. District Court against the Multicounty Enforcement Group, charging the agency violated the civil rights of a Bloomington man.

The Multicounty Enforcement Group, commonly called MEG, operates in six central Illinois counties, working primarily through undercover agents in drug abuse cases.

The McLean-DeWitt-Livingston County chapter of the ACLU filed the court suit against MEG, charging that its agents unfairly trapped Sammy Neal, 23, Bloomington, into selling illegal drugs.

The suit says that Neal was asked by a friend, who turned out to be a MEG agent, to hold the drug for other friends. Neal then sold the drugs to the other "friends," who also were MEG agents, the suit says.

Neal was charged with selling a controlled substance, but the charges were later dropped. The suit asks that MEG be ordered to stop using entrapment tactics in its undercover work.

Illinois briefs

CTA nomination rejected

Gov. Daniel Walker, still feuding with Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley over the proposed crosstown expressway, Tuesday rejected for the second time Daley's latest appointment to the Chicago Transit Authority Board.

Daley nominated Marshall Suloway for the second time last week. Walker, who must confirm the mayor's appointments under state law, rejected Suloway's nomination the first time July 3.

Walker specifically criticized a recent statement by Suloway that the city could begin construction of the crosstown next year. Walker said that is not true since the state must submit "environmental impact statements" to the federal government before the work can begin.

Landers files for divorce

Ann Landers, a syndicated columnist who gives advice to the lovelorn and others, filed for divorce Tuesday from Jules W. Lederer, her husband for 36 years. Miss Landers cited "extreme and repeated acts of mental cruelty" as reason for the divorce and said she separated from her husband last May 10.

Lederer's conduct caused Miss Landers "embarrassment, humiliation and anguish" and affected her "physical and mental well being," according to the suit.

The suit also asked the court to approve a property settlement in addition to the divorce.

Indictment over welfare

A county grand jury Tuesday indicted a woman on charges of bilking the state Dept. of Public Aid of welfare money by using several aliases. Authorities say she collected almost $16.000.

George Grumley, an administrator with the Illinois attorney general's office, said Carolyn Hightower, 26, a former clerk-typist for the department, first received relief under the name of Carolyn Rolly. Grumley refused to say how much money she received under that name.

She collected more than $10,800 as Betty Forest from 1972 through May, 1975 and received more than $5,000 under the name of Carolyn Chalmers from 1973 until April, 1975, Grumley said.

The woman then applied for aid under her real name but Grumley said the application was not accepted.

Drop conspiracy charge

At the request of a Watergate special prosecutor, a federal judge in Chicago has dismissed one of three charges against Ralph G. Newman, the scholar accused of backdating President Nixon's personal papers for tax purposes.

A study of court records showed that U. S. District Court Judge Frank J. McGarr dismissed a conspiracy charge against Newman Sept. 29.

Newman is still charged with two counts of lying to federal agents. Court records show that Assistant Special Watergate Prosecutor Jay Horowitz told McGarr that dropping the conspiracy charge would allow the case to be "more comprehensibly presented" to a jury.

Newman was indicted Feb. 19 on charges of conspiring with former White House tax adviser Frank DeMarco Jr. to backdate some of Nixon's personal papers so he would receive a tax break for donating them to historical institutions.

Think this will get a little action?

The way we see it

Aircraft noise an FAA matter

The Federal Aviation Administration has spent years listening to complaints about jet noise at airports, but it has provided few good answers.

At recent Chicago hearings on a proposed policy for establishing noise regulations at airports such as O'Hare, suburban residents repeated the same complaints and offered the same solutions they have been seeking for years.

FAA spokesmen have agreed in past years that some techniques would reduce noise for residents near airports but they have accepted the airline industry's argument that such improvements would be too costly.

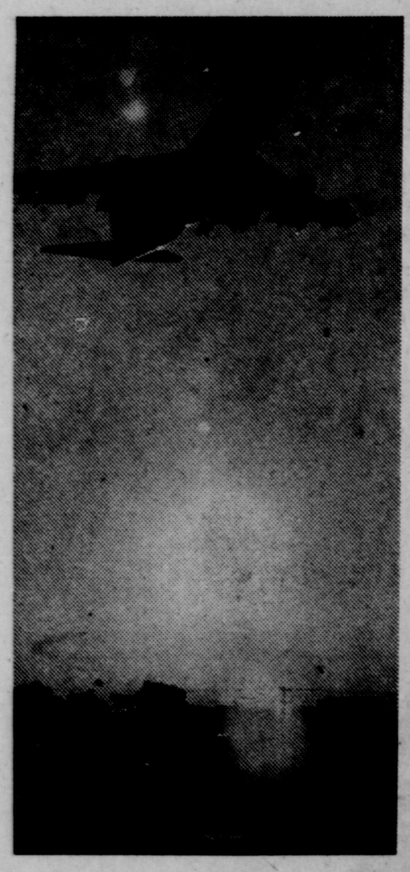
Some decisions have been postponed by top FAA officials in Washington, even though those decisions have been thoroughly studied. O'Hare area residents have charged that the FAA is using the public comment provisions in FAA rulemaking to excess, dragging out the time it takes to come to a solution.

The longer it takes to order airlines to rebuild their jet engines, the less of an economic burden it will be. Residents are particularly irked because they know the technology is available. The new jumbo jets have bigger but quieter engines, and still the FAA allows construction of noisier, older models that were approved years ago.

The FAA has not done its job of making aviation acceptable to the general public, and has moved extremely slowly. FAA defenders still call for control of zoning around airports to prevent construction of homes, and the argument has merit. But the homes and the people already are there, and their lives are being interrupted every day.

The question of who should pay for the sound-deadening improvements can be decided some other way. If the airlines can't absorb the costs, residents have suggested tax incentives for the airlines or a temporary surtax on airline tickets, similar to the security charges, until the engine improvements are complete.

The thousands of citizens who surround major airports deserve something in return for the tax dollars they pour into the FAA. Rapid decisions to alleviate noise would be a welcome move and would help restore faith in a regulatory agency that has made few improvements so far.



Our suburbs must join anti-noise fight, too

Several Northwest suburban communities missed an opportunity last week to carry on the fight against jet noise at O'Hare Airport.

Des Plaines, Niles and Park Ridge were represented at FAA public hearings, but no officials appeared for Mount Prospect, Elk Grove Village, Arlington Heights and other local communities.

The hearings were designed to accept information on whether local airports or the FAA should determine noise policies. That has been a particularly ticklish question with O'Hare, because it is surrounded by suburban communities that have no control over the airport.

The City of Chicago has been insensitive to the problems of the suburban residents, and suburban officials should have told the FAA how they want the noise issues handled. Des Plaines Ald. Alan Abrams, 8th, recommended formation of a noise abatement commission, but there were few voices to back him up.

It has been a long struggle against the FAA, with few results, but suburban officials owe it to their constituents to appear when the opportunities arise and voice the complaints their citizens have.

Private citizens from Mount Prospect and Elk Grove Village did speak last week, but their voices carried less weight than a village president's comments would have.

'Don't ignore Second Amendment'

An open letter to Sen. Charles H. Percy:

Don't ignore the Second Amendment.

Having received your letter of Sept. 11, in reply to my letter objecting to the Consumer Product Safety Commission acting to ban handgun ammunition, I have a question regarding your argument in favor of banning effective ownership of firearms by U.S. citizens.

You mention a U.S. District Court ruling that the CPSC had the authority to ban the material (ammunition). Does this federal court have the power to void the Bill of Rights of the United States Constitution? See what the encyclopedia says about the citizens' ownership of firearms.

My 1963 copy of the Encyclopedia Britannica, Inc., was published with the editorial advice of the faculties of the University of Chicago and of a committee of members of the faculties of Oxford, Cambridge, and London universities and a committee at the University of Toronto. Irving (Newton) Brant, author of James Madison (5 volumes) said in his contribution to the Encyclopedia on the Bill of Rights, of The United States Constitution . . . "Hostility to standing armies found expression in a guarantee of the people's right to bear arms and in limitation of the quartering of soldiers in private houses." This is found in volume 3, page 618. Is this in error in the year 1975?

I say if you want to take guns or ammunition from the U.S. citizen, make an amendment to the Constitution and process it as the Constitution requires.

'Let's look at the Revolution'

Now we are preparing for the Bicentennial of our nation's history. How proud we are that we won against great odds and created the United States. But we are free and unbiased, so let's look at what took place at Bunker Hill. The admiration we have for the Minute Men who with great courage stood their ground and lined up against an army of regimented British forces is breath-taking.

But these British soldiers were acting true to their traditions yet reluctant to fire at the colonists. The first shot fired was accidental (as far as history can trace and came from our side). However, it was inevitable that war would occur.

After this skirmish and all along the Lexington Road, Middlesex farmers and others with their hunting guns became snipers and gave the British soldiers a bad time as they tried to maintain army procedures and regulations. We had just cause for our revolution.

But look at one lone plaque that is over the North Bridge, off Bunker Hill in Lexington, Mass. It reads:

"April 19th, 1775: They came three thousand miles and died, To keep the past upon its throne. Unheard beyond the ocean tide, Their English mother made her moan."

A family's 'reward'

On Aug. 11 my daughter's bike was stolen. She is 10 years old and had saved for most of her life for this bike, which was four months old. I wrote a letter to the Herald Fence Post, but had forgotten it. We were pretty upset with the state of the human race when, two days later, her brother's new Schwinn, earned with money from a paper route, was also stolen.

Tuesday, Sept. 16, The Herald published my letter. I came home on Wednesday to receive a phone call from a total stranger, whom my children and I will never forget. Mrs. Szostek and her husband and two lovely daughters had seen our letter and decided to give my daughter a nearly new Schwinn which had been outgrown. They would not take any money for the bike, saying only that something good was sure to come their way.

Mrs. Szostek, I know God will reward your family for your generosity. My faith in people has been restored by your unselfishness, and I hope my children have learned something by this experience.

Sen. Regner draws a cheer

I carefully reviewed, with great interest, the recent report sent to voters in the Third District by State Senator David J. Regner.

Senator Regner is to be congratulated for his efforts on behalf of residents of the Northwest suburbs. He has demonstrated by his voting record a true concern for the economic crises soon to hit all taxpayers in Illinois.

Governor Walker and his Democratic majority would be well advised to follow the example set by our senator before they lead us into bankruptcy. It may already be too late.

'Where the action is'

Rocky's Veep future: it's up to President

by DONALD LAMBRO

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Not too long ago, Nelson A. Rockefeller confided to a close acquaintance the vice presidency "isn't much of a job, but it's where the action is."

Being where the action is means remaining vice president for the next five years which Rockefeller, though he denies being a candidate, is trying very hard to do.

The second man to be appointed vice president in America's history, Rockefeller's political future rests solely with President Ford. Should Ford win the Republican nomination, he has indicated a strong desire to select Rockefeller as his running mate.

If tradition and history are any guide to an always uncertain political future, Ford's choice should be accepted by the party delegates with little dispute. But would they in Rockefeller's case?

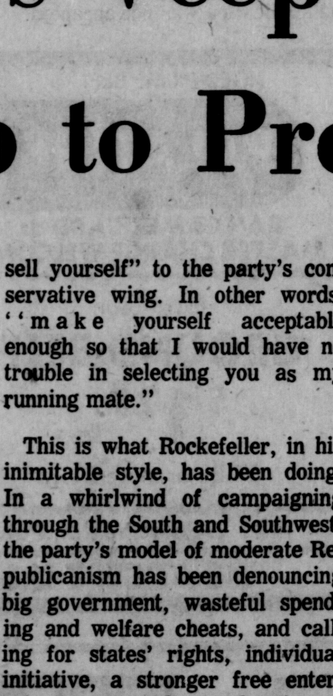
The former New York governor has been far from beloved by the Republican party's conservative wing. A Harris survey placed him third among Republicans for the No. 2 spot, behind Ronald Reagan and Barry Goldwater.

Ford's own campaign manager, Howard Callaway, made headlines this summer by suggesting that Rockefeller would not be an asset to Ford's candidacy for the GOP presidential nomination among the party's conservatives — particularly in the South.

Thus, Ford's own private advice to Rockefeller, according to White House sources, was to "go out and sell yourself" to the party's conservative wing. In other words, "make yourself acceptable enough so that I would have no trouble in selecting you as my running mate."

This is what Rockefeller, in his inimitable style, has been doing. In a whirlwind of campaigning through the South and Southwest, the party's model of moderate Republicanism has been denouncing big government, wasteful spending and welfare cheats, and calling for states' rights, individual initiative, a stronger free enterprise system and an end to forced busing.

His speeches before largely conservative audiences are heavily laced with the phrases and themes of Barry Goldwater, the presidential candidate he refused to support in 1964.



NELSON ROCKEFELLER

"Let's get back to the fundamental values," Rockefeller told GOP audiences recently in Dallas, Little Rock and Oklahoma City. The federal government, he charged in almost every speech, has been "overspending, overpromising and overregulating . . . and if we continue, we're going to destroy our society."

He denies he is campaigning and says he does not want to "influence the President's decision in any way" but his trips are meticulously advanced by political aides and his remarks are rhetorically tailored to appeal to that segment of the party which has steadfastly denied him the presidential nomination.

Rockefeller tells Republicans that at age 67 he is "totally relaxed" about his future, that he harbors no higher political ambitions and merely wants to help Ford "in any way I can."

"I'm not campaigning and I'm not a candidate," he says. "The President has to keep all his options open and I don't want in any way to put pressure on him."

He rather self-deprecatingly describes the office of the vice presidency as "nothing more really than a staff assistant to the President."

But Rockefeller's barnstorming tours of the GOP's conservative heartlands shows he is running hard to be No. 2 next year, a post he has often rejected out of hand yet now seeks mightily so that he may continue to be "where the action is."

The way we see it

Aircraft noise an FAA matter

The Federal Aviation Administration has spent years listening to complaints about jet noise at airports, but it has provided few good answers.

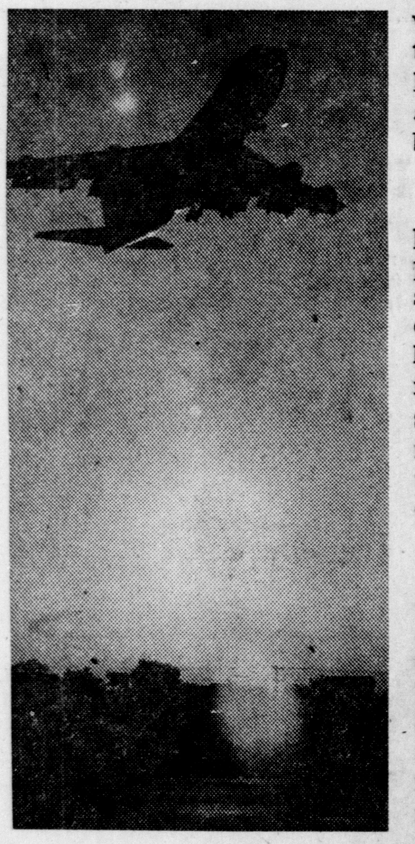
At recent Chicago hearings on a proposed policy for establishing noise regulations at airports such as O'Hare, suburban residents repeated the same complaints and offered the same solutions they have been seeking for years.

FAA spokesmen have agreed in past years that some techniques would reduce noise for residents near airports but they have accepted the airline industry's argument that such improvements would be too costly.

Some decisions have been postponed by top FAA officials in Washington, even though those decisions have been thoroughly studied. O'Hare area residents have charged that the FAA is using the public comment provisions in FAA rulemaking to excess, dragging out the time it takes to come to a solution.

The longer it takes to order airlines to rebuild their jet engines, the less of an economic burden it will be. Residents are particularly irked because they know the technology is available. The new jumbo jets have bigger but quieter engines, and still the FAA allows construction of noisier, older models that were approved years ago.

The FAA has not done its job of making aviation acceptable to the general public, and has moved extremely slowly. FAA defenders still call for control of zoning around airports to prevent construction of homes, and the argument has merit. But the homes and the people already are there, and their lives are being interrupted every day.



The question of who should pay for the sound-deadening improvements can be decided some other way. If the airlines can't absorb the costs, residents have suggested tax incentives for the airlines or a temporary surtax on airline tickets, similar to the security charges, until the engine improvements are complete.

The thousands of citizens who surround major airports deserve something in return for the tax dollars they pour into the FAA. Rapid decisions to alleviate noise would be a welcome move and would help restore faith in a regulatory agency that has made few improvements so far.

Our suburbs must join anti-noise fight, too

Several Northwest suburban communities missed an opportunity last week to carry on the fight against jet noise at O'Hare Airport.

Des Plaines, Niles and Park Ridge were represented at FAA public hearings, but no officials appeared for Mount Prospect, Elk Grove Village, Arlington Heights and other local communities.

The hearings were designed to accept information on whether local airports or the FAA should determine noise policies. That has been a particularly ticklish question with O'Hare, because it is surrounded by suburban communities that have no control over the airport.

The City of Chicago has been insensitive to the problems of the suburban residents, and suburban officials should have told the FAA how they want the noise issues handled. Des Plaines Ald. The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Not all hard arteries mean trouble

I am a 61-year-old female weighing about 136 pounds and am 5-feet-6 inches tall. I do not smoke or drink. A few months ago I had a complete physical examination including blood work, cardiogram and chest X ray.

My physician gave me a clean bill of health but said the X rays showed a tendency toward hardening of the arteries. I asked him what I could do about that he replied, "nothing."

This report has caused me quite a bit of concern because I have seen the mental confusion in older people caused by hardening of the arteries. Naturally I do not want this to happen to me. Could you give me any encouragement for my future health?

Encouragement coming up. In the first place the kind of changes you can see on routine X rays in the arteries is not the kind that causes heart and brain disease. That ought to make you feel better. I am sure your doctor saw the kind we worry less about.

The kind of change we see in the arteries that causes heart attacks and strokes is the deposition of fatty-cholesterol particles just under the inside lining of the artery. The deposits bulge into the opening and shut it off partially or completely, or rupture, leading to the local formation of a clot in the artery. This causes a stroke (big or small) and heart attacks, depending on what artery is involved.

Another change we often see is the formation of calcium in the middle part of the arterial wall. This will make the artery hard, like a lead pipe, but it won't cause it to become obstructed. The calcium is radio-opaque, and it can be seen on the X ray. These deposits are commonly present in the wall of the main big artery, the aorta, that supplies all the body except the lungs.

To see the changes that obstruct arteries, you need to inject a radio-opaque dye into the artery and then take special pictures. This is what is done to see the changes in the coronary arteries or to visualize the arteries to the brain. That is not the kind of test you have on a routine medical examination, so that is not what your doctor is talking about.

Senility changes can and do occur even when there is no impairment of circulation to the brain. Nevertheless, if you can maintain normal circulation you have a better chance of avoiding the changes you want to escape.

To do this you should try to avoid or eliminate any tendency to obesity, use the kind of diet we recommend to prevent atherosclerosis, the formation of fatty-cholesterol deposits, and maintain a regular exercise program.

Your doctor may have checked your cholesterol levels and found they were normal. Your blood pressure was normal and you don't smoke, so in that case you have eliminated all three of the major factors you can do something about that contribute to an increase in atherosclerosis. If your blood pressure was high I would suggest treating it to protect you longer. You are now in the age when a woman has to consider these things just as much as a man does, but it sounds like you are doing all right.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Not all hard arteries mean trouble

I am a 61-year-old female weighing about 136 pounds and am 5-feet-6 inches tall. I do not smoke or drink. A few months ago I had a complete physical examination including blood work, cardiogram and chest X ray.

My physician gave me a clean bill of health but said the X rays showed a tendency toward hardening of the arteries. I asked him what I could do about that he replied, "nothing."

This report has caused me quite a bit of concern because I have seen the mental confusion in older people caused by hardening of the arteries. Naturally I do not want this to happen to me. Could you give me any encouragement for my future health?

Encouragement coming up. In the first place the kind of changes you can see on routine X rays in the arteries is not the kind that causes heart and brain disease. That ought to make you feel better. I am sure your doctor saw the kind we worry less about.

The kind of change we see in the arteries that causes heart attacks and strokes is the deposition of fatty-cholesterol particles just under the inside lining of the artery. The deposits bulge into the opening and shut it off partially or completely, or rupture, leading to the local formation of a clot in the artery. This causes a stroke (big or small) and heart attacks, depending on what artery is involved.

Another change we often see is the formation of calcium in the middle part of the arterial wall. This will make the artery hard, like a lead pipe, but it won't cause it to become obstructed. The calcium is radio-opaque, and it can be seen on the X ray. These deposits are commonly present in the wall of the main big artery, the aorta, that supplies all the body except the lungs.

To see the changes that obstruct arteries, you need to inject a radio-opaque dye into the artery and then take special pictures. This is what is done to see the changes in the coronary arteries or to visualize the arteries to the brain. That is not the kind of test you have on a routine medical examination, so that is not what your doctor is talking about.

Senility changes can and do occur even when there is no impairment of circulation to the brain. Nevertheless, if you can maintain normal circulation you have a better chance of avoiding the changes you want to escape.

To do this you should try to avoid or eliminate any tendency to obesity, use the kind of diet we recommend to prevent atherosclerosis, the formation of fatty-cholesterol deposits, and maintain a regular exercise program.

Your doctor may have checked your cholesterol levels and found they were normal. Your blood pressure was normal and you don't smoke, so in that case you have eliminated all three of the major factors you can do something about that contribute to an increase in atherosclerosis. If your blood pressure was high I would suggest treating it to protect you longer. You are now in the age when a woman has to consider these things just as much as a man does, but it sounds like you are doing all right.

The program is financed by a grant from Searle Corp.

1976 auto sales up 13%; new models cited in gains

DETROIT (UPI) — The four U.S. automakers reported Tuesday that sales in the first period of the 1976 model year jumped nearly 13 per cent over year-ago levels when new model introductions produced a big thud in Detroit.

The sales were the best for any month-opening period since November of 1973 and the best year-to-year gain since early September of last year.

General Motors, Ford and American Motors reported substntial gains over last Oct. 1-10 — 17 per cent at GM, 16 per cent for Ford and 25 per cent at AMC — but Chrysler said its sales were down 14 per cent.

CHRYSLER WON'T formally introduce its '76 models until later this week but said the new models accounted for 28 per cent of its sales.

GM sales were aided by the new small Chevette which turned in the fastest sales start of any new car ever introduced by Chevrolet, accounting for 6,100 sales with 14,300 unfilled orders at the end of the period.

The four companies sold 243,642 cars in early October, up 12.7 per cent from 216,110 a year ago and almost equal to the same period in 1973, just before the start of the Arab oil embargo that triggered the two-year sales slump.

The strong showing by the companies was in sharp contrast to a year ago when the introduction of the '75s, with price tags averaging $500 over earlier models, started the industry's long slide that hit bottom during the winter when more than 300,000 auto workers were idled. That figure stands at below 81,000 this week and is not expected to drop much further unless sales improve.

GM SALES IN the period totaled 129,846 cars, Ford delivered 82,476 cars, Chrysler 23,609 and AMC 7,711. So far this year, sales are still trailing 1974's slow pace by nearly 14 per cent with the 5,265,899 cars sold a sharp 32 per cent below the record pace of 1973, just before the start of the Arab oil embargo.

GM also set a record in the sale of 33,044 commercial vehicles, up 42 per cent over last year and an even stronger indication of a strengthening economy. Ford's truck sales were up 19 per cent over last year with Chrysler reporting a 6 per cent gain.

Students learn firsthand 'realities' of business life

by WANDALYN RICE

"What kind of affirmative action program does your company have?" an intense young woman asked Motorola executive John Robinson.

"We have a very active one," Robinson said. "There are a lot of opportunities for women in our organization. There weren't two years ago, but today things have really changed."

The woman looked satisfied and the conversation moved on to other things, including the problems that face executives who are transferred overseas only to discover that their lives don't improve in the ways they hoped.

"We get people who want to lead a James Bond life and they get in real trouble," Robinson said. "If you don't know what you want out of life here, going overseas won't help you find out."

ROBINSON, MANAGER of international engineering research and development at Motorola, was talking to students at Harper College in Palatine. He told them about the realities of business and particularly the realities of international business.

Flashing a slide on the screen for the students in the introduction to business class, he explained the complex diagram. "This shows the communication system that we have set up to connect Tel Aviv with Damascus for the United Nations peacekeeping forces," he said. "We have just one problem and that is that every once in awhile one side or the other decides to eliminate our station on the Golan Heights."

Robinson's appearance at Harper is part of a program being conducted by the college with a grant from G. D. Searle Corp. in Des Plaines. The program, called Education-Industry Interface, will bring seven business executives to Harper to talk to students this semester.

"The important thing about this program is that it lets students meet people they wouldn't meet otherwise," Donald Sedik, coordinator of the program, said. "It gives them a chance to see people in business who enjoy what they are doing."

STUDENTS TEND to ask the executives some unexpected but relevant questions, Sedik said. "Last semester we had one executive who was talking about his business when one of the students asked — 'What do you do all day?' If you think about it, that's a very good question."

The executive was not stopped by the question, Sedik said. "His answer was 'I solve problems,' which is a pretty good description of many executive jobs," Sedik said.

The Searle grant which established the program will give the college, through the Harper Educational Foundation, $10,000 a year for three years to develop the program. The part of the program that brings executives like John Robinson to the college is only part of the project funded by the grant, Sedik said.

"Our next step is to bring the program concept to the high schools," he said. "We haven't got the specifics down, but we belive this will be very valuable for high schools."

AFTER THE PROGRAM is expanded to the high schools, Sedik said, Harper hopes to interest other community colleges and four-year schools in northern Illinois in the program. A reverse arrangement with businesses which will allow Harper business teachers to work in industry to make sure their knowledge is up to date also will eventually become part of the program, he said.

The value of the whole program, Sedik said is to keep the Harper business classes up to date and related to the real world of business. The speakers help do that.

"The textbook can do one thing and I can do another for the students," he said. "But businessmen can provide a dimension for students that you don't get any other way."

Speakers who will appear at the college as part of the education-industry interface include: Jean Feightner, manager, women's affirmative action program, Sears and Roebuck, Oct. 20; R.R. Roberts, industrial relations manager, Ampex Corp., Nov. 10; Andrew deVoursney, vice president of corporate planning and finance,United Airlines, Nov. 19; Robert Creek, vice president for administration, Union 76 Division, Union Oil Co. of California, Dec. 3; and William Owens, president, medical instrumentation group, Searle Analytic Inc., Dec. 10.

Selling wave turns back earlier gains by stocks

NEW YORK (UPI) — A late session selling wave swept away earlier gains, turning prices mixed in heavy trading Tuesday on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which rolled up 13.86 points Monday, closed off 2.52 at 835.25. The closely followed blue chip indicator had risen eight points earlier in the session. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index eased 0.18 to 89.28. The price of an average NYSE share lost three cents.

Advances, however, maintained a lead over declines, 780 to 579, among the 1,846 issues crossing the tape.

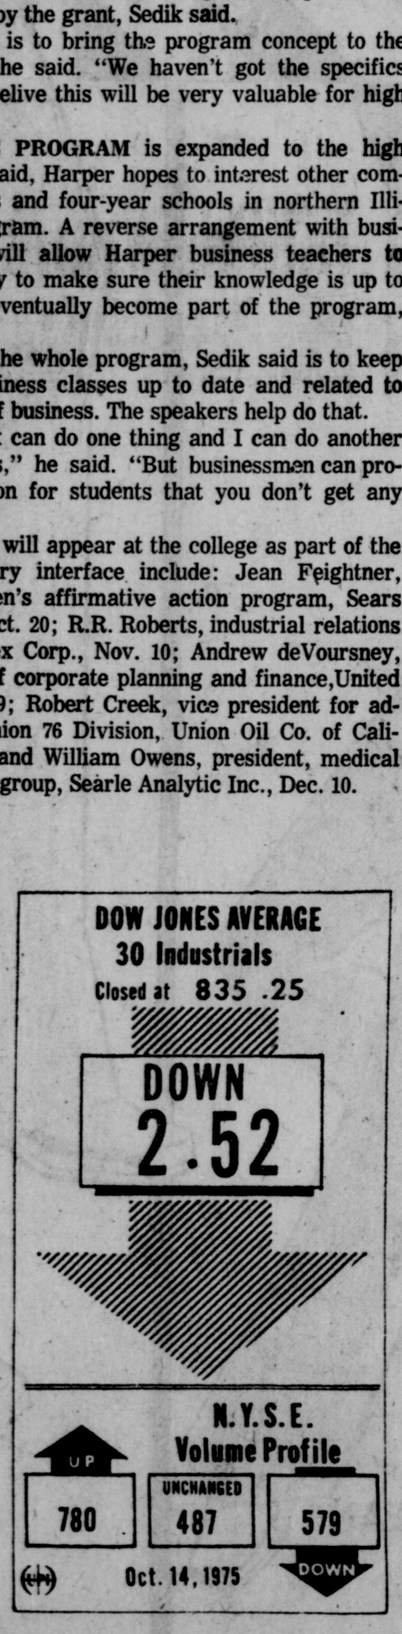
Volume totaled 19,960,000 shares, the heaviest since 20,824,540 shares were turned over Sept. 20. Monday's sales amounted to 12,020,000 shares and reflected general inactivity on the Columbus Day holiday.

MOST MAJOR stock groups turned in a mixed performance, but the glamors came under some late afternoon selling pressure.

Polaroid was the most active Big Board issue, off 1½ to 39-3/8 on 297,700 shares. Sony Corp. was second most active, unchanged at 9¾ on 253,300 shares. Among the hard-hit glamors, Digital Equipment tumbled 4-7/8 to 129-7/8, Burroughs 2½ to 89¼, and Xerox 2¼ to 60¾.

The steels and rails were fractionally higher. The motors and gold issues weakened.

Prices closed mixed in fairly active trading on the American Stock Exchange. The price of an averag Amex share dropped four cents. Volume totaled 1,828,000 shares, against the 1,197,000 shares exchanged Monday.



State to watch cash flow closely

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — The major agencies of Illinois state government agreed in principle Tuesday to work togther in an effort to prevent future cash shortages.

Meeting at the request of Gov. Daniel Walker, the state's biggest spenders agreed to pool information daily on how much money they are in the process of darwing from the General Revenue Fund.

It is hoped that the information, coupled with the detailed records already kept by Comptroller George Lindberg of how much cash is in the GRF, will help keep the state from "bottoming out" its available cash as happened last week.

The system is designed to give "early warning" of large spending requests, so other demands for payment can be delayed. It was approved without objection by all the agencies represented at the meet ing, according to former budget bureau head Hal Hovey, who was hired as a consultant to run the gathering.

"Technical people" from departments and agencies still were meeting late Tuesday in an effort to work out details, Hovey said.

Hovey said most other states have had such a system for years. Illinois has not needed it because the state has mainained such a large bank balance that no conceivable set of circumstances could wipe it out, he said.

That situation has changed during the past two years as the state sent its $450 million reserve down to a low point of less than $100,000 last week.

Hovey and other participants said the system should provide a mechanism capable of preventing short-run cash flow problems.

"Everybody believes that if we'd had this system in operation a month ago, we wouldn't have had the problems we've had in the past two weeks," William Goldberg, Walker's chief lawyer, said.

But, Treasurer Alan Dixon said, the proposed voluntary cash-management system is not a substitute for fiscal restraint.

"If your expenditures are so far ahead of your revenues that you can never pay your bills, obviously this system doesn't solve the problem," Dixon said.

GM SALES IN the period totaled 129,846 cars, Ford delivered 82,476 cars, Chrysler 23,609 and AMC 7,711. So far this year, sales are still trailing 1974's slow pace by nearly 14 per cent with the 5,265,899 cars sold a sharp 32 per cent below the record pace of 1973, just before the start of the Arab oil embargo.

GM also set a record in the sale of 33,044 commercial vehicles, up 42 per cent over last year and an even stronger indication of a strengthening economy. Ford's truck sales were up 19 per cent over last year with Chrysler reporting a 6 per cent gain.

Students learn firsthand 'realities' of business life

by WANDALYN RICE

"What kind of affirmative action program does your company have?" an intense young woman asked Motorola executive John Robinson.

"We have a very active one," Robinson said. "There are a lot of opportunities for women in our organization. There weren't two years ago, but today things have really changed."

The woman looked satisfied and the conversation moved on to other things, including the problems that face executives who are transferred overseas only to discover that their lives don't improve in the ways they hoped.

"We get people who want to lead a James Bond life and they get in real trouble," Robinson said. "If you don't know what you want out of life here, going overseas won't help you find out."

ROBINSON, MANAGER of international engineering research and development at Motorola, was talking to students at Harper College in Palatine. He told them about the realities of business and particularly the realities of international business.

Flashing a slide on the screen for the students in the introduction to business class, he explained the complex diagram. "This shows the communication system that we have set up to connect Tel Aviv with Damascus for the United Nations peacekeeping forces," he said. "We have just one problem and that is that every once in awhile one side or the other decides to eliminate our station on the Golan Heights."

Robinson's appearance at Harper is part of a program being conducted by the college with a grant from G. D. Searle Corp. in Des Plaines. The program, called Education-Industry Interface, will bring seven business executives to Harper to talk to students this semester.

"The important thing about this program is that it lets students meet people they wouldn't meet otherwise," Donald Sedik, coordinator of the program, said. "It gives them a chance to see people in business who enjoy what they are doing."

STUDENTS TEND to ask the executives some unexpected but relevant questions, Sedik said. "Last semester we had one executive who was talking about his business when one of the students asked — 'What do you do all day?' If you think about it, that's a very good question."

The executive was not stopped by the question, Sedik said. "His answer was 'I solve problems,' which is a pretty good description of many executive jobs," Sedik said.

The Searle grant which established the program will give the college, through the Harper Educational Foundation, $10,000 a year for three years to develop the program. The part of the program that brings executives like John Robinson to the college is only part of the project funded by the grant, Sedik said.

"Our next step is to bring the program concept to the high schools," he said. "We haven't got the specifics down, but we belive this will be very valuable for high schools."

AFTER THE PROGRAM is expanded to the high schools, Sedik said, Harper hopes to interest other community colleges and four-year schools in northern Illinois in the program. A reverse arrangement with businesses which will allow Harper business teachers to work in industry to make sure their knowledge is up to date also will eventually become part of the program, he said.

The value of the whole program, Sedik said is to keep the Harper business classes up to date and related to the real world of business. The speakers help do that.

"The textbook can do one thing and I can do another for the students," he said. "But businessmen can provide a dimension for students that you don't get any other way."

Speakers who will appear at the college as part of the education-industry interface include: Jean Feightner, manager, women's affirmative action program, Sears and Roebuck, Oct. 20; R.R. Roberts, industrial relations manager, Ampex Corp., Nov. 10; Andrew deVoursney, vice president of corporate planning and finance,United Airlines, Nov. 19; Robert Creek, vice president for administration, Union 76 Division, Union Oil Co. of California, Dec. 3; and William Owens, president, medical instrumentation group, Searle Analytic Inc., Dec. 10.

Selling wave turns back earlier gains by stocks

NEW YORK (UPI) — A late session selling wave swept away earlier gains, turning prices mixed in heavy trading Tuesday on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which rolled up 13.86 points Monday, closed off 2.52 at 835.25. The closely followed blue chip indicator had risen eight points earlier in the session. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index eased 0.18 to 89.28. The price of an average NYSE share lost three cents.

Advances, however, maintained a lead over declines, 780 to 579, among the 1,846 issues crossing the tape.

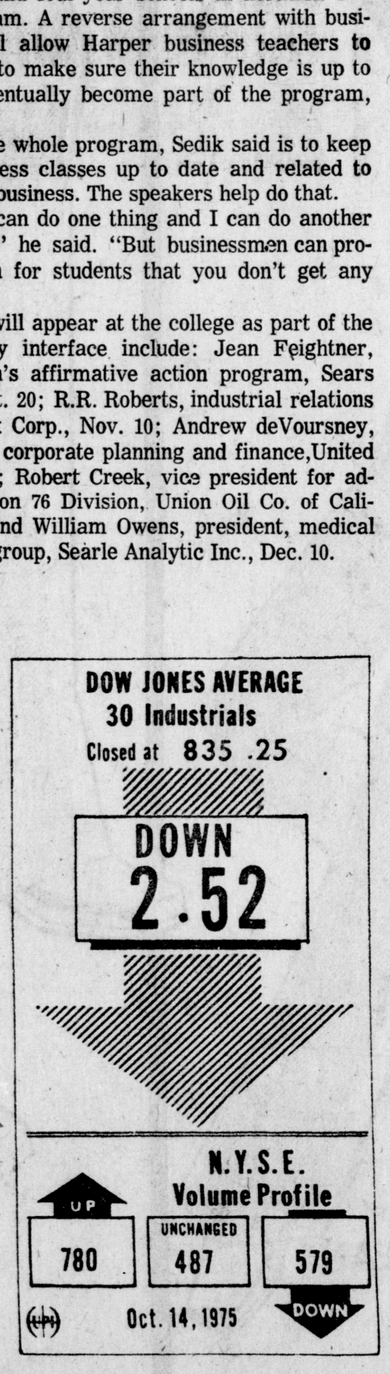
Volume totaled 19,960,000 shares, the heaviest since 20,824,540 shares were turned over Sept. 20. Monday's sales amounted to 12,020,000 shares and reflected general inactivity on the Columbus Day holiday.

MOST MAJOR stock groups turned in a mixed performance, but the glamors came under some late afternoon selling pressure.

Polaroid was the most active Big Board issue, off 1½ to 39-3/8 on 297,700 shares. Sony Corp. was second most active, unchanged at 9¾ on 253,300 shares. Among the hard-hit glamors, Digital Equipment tumbled 4-7/8 to 129-7/8, Burroughs 2½ to 89¼, and Xerox 2¼ to 60¾.

The steels and rails were fractionally higher. The motors and gold issues weakened.

Prices closed mixed in fairly active trading on the American Stock Exchange. The price of an averag Amex share dropped four cents. Volume totaled 1,828,000 shares, against the 1,197,000 shares exchanged Monday.



State to watch cash flow closely

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — The major agencies of Illinois state government agreed in principle Tuesday to work togther in an effort to prevent future cash shortages.

Meeting at the request of Gov. Daniel Walker, the state's biggest spenders agreed to pool information daily on how much money they are in the process of darwing from the General Revenue Fund.

It is hoped that the information, coupled with the detailed records already kept by Comptroller George Lindberg of how much cash is in the GRF, will help keep the state from "bottoming out" its available cash as happened last week.

The system is designed to give "early warning" of large spending requests, so other demands for payment can be delayed. It was approved without objection by all the agencies represented at the meet ing, according to former budget bureau head Hal Hovey, who was hired as a consultant to run the gathering.

"Technical people" from departments and agencies still were meeting late Tuesday in an effort to work out details, Hovey said.

Hovey said most other states have had such a system for years. Illinois has not needed it because the state has mainained such a large bank balance that no conceivable set of circumstances could wipe it out, he said.

That situation has changed during the past two years as the state sent its $450 million reserve down to a low point of less than $100,000 last week.

Hovey and other participants said the system should provide a mechanism capable of preventing short-run cash flow problems.

"Everybody believes that if we'd had this system in operation a month ago, we wouldn't have had the problems we've had in the past two weeks," William Goldberg, Walker's chief lawyer, said.

But, Treasurer Alan Dixon said, the proposed voluntary cash-management system is not a substitute for fiscal restraint.

"If your expenditures are so far ahead of your revenues that you can never pay your bills, obviously this system doesn't solve the problem," Dixon said.

Dealers now responsible for used car, truck safety

NEW YORK (UPI) — The increased responsibility of dealers and manufacturers decreed by the courts in recent years for dangerous defects in products now has been extended to the used car and truck market.

The courts have acted in two cases involving deaths from defects in used vehicles.

An Oklahoma used car dealer was indicted for manslaughter when four persons died of carbon monoxide poisoning as the result of an exhaust leak in a car he sold. The former owner of the car testified the dealer was aware of the exhaust leak when he took the car in. This case is expected to result in a long court fight.

In the other case, a New Jersey truck driver bought a used truck of the cab-over-engine type. While he was working on the engine with the cab elevated, the catch that held the cab gave way. The cab fell on the driver and caused his death. His widow sued both the dealer who sold the used truck and the manufacturer.

THE CASE WAS fought to the State Supreme Court, which finally ruled in favor of the widow against both the dealer and the manufacturer.

The Research Group of Charlottesville, Va., which does legal research for attorneys and their clients, says the New Jersey case is a landmark decision. There was no contention that the dealer was aware of the defective cab catch, only that he and the manufacturer were responsible for the catch.

The real significance of the New Jersey decision, according to the Research Group, is that it strictly minimizes a "sold as is" sales condition to body dents and normal wear and tear on the body and engine.

The Research Group said the decision means the used car buyer now has much the same justifiable expectations of safety in a used vehicle as in a new vehicle. He has a right to expect that the brakes, steering mechanism, the exhaust system and other parts critical to safety have been inspected and maintained in safe condition.

The Research Group said the New Jersey decision also is important because it comes at a time when many persons who normally buy new cars are starting to buy used cars because of the recession.

FROM THE LEGAL pont of view, the Research Group said the New Jersey decision brought clarity to a confused and ambiguous subject. For the first time, a state's highest court has declared clearly used car dealers cannot escape liability for safety defects on the grounds that, unlike new car dealers, they have little chance of passing the liability back to the manufacturer.

The Research Group said, while a number of decisions had been handed down previously on used car liability, the whole area was extremely cloudy until the New Jersey decision.

It said that decision tends to bring used car merchandising liability in line with the American Law Institute's famous "Restatement of Torts" proclaimed as a result of the landmark California case of Greenman vs. Yuba Power Products Inc., in 1963.

This case led, the Research Group said, to the widespread application of the strict liability doctrine in tort litigation which later was applied by Congress in the new occupational and consumer products safety laws.

Pipeline company fined $100 for gas line break

The pipeline company responsible for the natural gas leak which caused the closing of the Northwest Tollway on June 26 was fined $100 in County Circuit Court Tuesday.

Cook County's Dept. of Environmental Control cited the Sheehan Pipe Line Co. of Villa Park after the broken gas main caused a major tie-up in rush hour traffic. County inspectors said in court one of the company's tractor drivers admitted breaking the gas main. The county argued the company should have checked with Northern Illinois Gas Co. before working in the area.

SPOKESMEN FOR Sheehan Pipe Line Co. claimed the pipe was improperly located and should have been put deeper underground. The judge ruled, however, that the company was guilty of negligence. Sheehan has until Nov. 25 to pay the fine.

Spokesmen for NI Gas said Tuesday that no estimates were immediately available on how much it cost the gas company to repair the damage. It took 3½ hours for NI Gas crews to seal the leak, which caused a natural gas concentration as high as 40 per cent in the area around the broken main.

Touch-tape makers mark 50th birthday of product

by LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — This year marks the 50th anniversary of the invention of "stick-at-a-touch" tapes, which have burgeoned into a worldwide industry so big nobody knows what its total volume is.

Sales are well over $1 billion a year but no one has any idea how much over a billion, says Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing Co. — 3M — of St. Paul, one of the leading producers.

The diversity of these tapes, ranging from heavy industrial packaging fasteners to tapes for babies' diapers, is enormous. The 3M Co. alone makes more than 600 kinds. There are 25 other American producers and at least 22 foreign manufacturers.

"All the touch tape made last year would reach to the moon and back and leave enough left over to go around the world eight times," quipped a 3M executive.

THESE TAPES don't include ordinary glue paper tapes that have to be moistened.

This huge business got started almost by accident, says 3M. In the early 1920s, most automobile manufacturers painted practically all their new cars black. But many individualistic motorists had their cars repainted in two colors. This led to demand for a good masking tape for use in auto paint shops.

The paper tapes then available tended either not to stick well and let the paint smudge or to stick too well and pull off gobs of new paint when removed.

Richard G. Drew, now retired was then a sandpaper technician working for 3M, and the company gave him the job of developing a suitable stick-at-the-touch masking tape for automobile paintshops. The problem wasn't easy and it took Drew months to solve it. Then, within five years, 3M and Drew developed the first trans parent pressure-sensitive tape made out of cellophane. Transparent pressure-sensitive tapes now are used in practically every home, office, factory, shop, school and institution.

AND OUT OF this proliferated the billion dollar a year plus industry that has created many thousands of jobs and solved many problems.

The tapes come in a bewildering variety of sizes, strengths, colors, adaptability to temperatures, stretching, resistance to various chemicals, permeability and non-permeability.

One of the most unusual is a solid golf leaf tape used in space vehicles to insulate against extreme temperatures. Another is hypo-allergenic and moisture resistant yet allows the human skin to breathe through it. It is used in surgery. Diaper tapes have largely replaced safety pins and the garment industry uses a wide variety of fastening and mending pressure-sensitive tapes.

Pressure-sensitive reflector tapes and electrical tapes in many varieties are familiar to everyone. And the heavier packaging touch tapes have largely replaced cords and even nails, screws and bolts in many kinds of packaging.

STILL ANOTHER family of these tapes is just coming on the market. A series of mending tapes is being made by 3M so sticky and strong they can be used for repairs on concrete and various ceramics that nothing would stick to well in the past.

The tapes even have attracted the attention of the art world. Robert Kerns, a Minnesota artist, "paints" pictures by fastening bits of colored tape to paper canvas. He has just had his first one-man show in New York.

Talks to probe ulcers, arthritis

Ulcers and arthritis will be discussed by doctors in two programs this month sponsored by area churches and Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge.

"Ulcers and Colitis — New Medical Approaches" will be the topic 8 p.m. Thursday at St. Mary's Church, 794 Pearson, Des Plaines.

Dr. Alfred Serritella, an internist, will discuss diagnosis and treatment of peptic ulcers, colitis and diverticulitis. He will also discuss the role of antacids, medication and diet in treatment of these diseases.

Dr. Ira Melnicoff will discuss "Arthritis — Facts, Fancy and Fiction" at 8 p.m. Oct. 23 at St. Paul Lutheran Church, 18 S. School St., Mount Prospect.

"We want to dispel much of the misinformation people have about arthritis and what causes it. Arthritis is not a hopeless disease," said Melnicoff, a member of the medical staff at Lutheran General.

Acupuncture topic at Forest Hospital

Dr. Stephen T. Botek, instructor of psychiatry at New York Medical College, will discuss the advantages of acupuncture Nov. 5, at Forest Hospital, Des Plaines.

Botek will speak at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium of the hospital's professional center, 555 Wilson Ln. Fee for professionals is $15. Fee for students is $5. For more information call 827-8811, ext. 362.

Holiday cards sale to help fight cancer

The Northwest Suburban Unit of the American Cancer Society is selling holiday greeting cards to raise money for the fight against cancer.

A box, which includes 25 cards, costs $12.50. There is an additional charge for imprinting.

A sample card and order blank can be obtained by calling the society at 358-3965 or writing to the unit, 113 N. Northwest Highway, Palatine. All orders requiring imprinting must be made by Dec. 1.

Events set for elderly

Two events are being planned this month by the Maine Township Senior Citizens Commission.

The commission will sponsor a bingo party at 1 p.m. today at the Greens Recreation Center, 8909 David Pl., Maine Township.

A day-long outing to Starved Rock State Park is scheduled Oct. 21. Accommodations for the trip are limited to 100 persons, but Ferdinant Arndt, township senior citizens coordinator, said that if there is sufficient interest in the outing a second trip may be scheduled Oct. 22.

Arndt said activities for November are now in the planning stage. Persons interested in receiving the township newsletter should contact Bea Ballin at 827-0745 or the township office at 297-2510.

Any senior citizen who lives in Maine Township is eligible to take part in the program. Funds for the program are made available through the township's share of federal reveue sharing funds. The township pays for organizing activities and transportation.

The diversity of these tapes, ranging from heavy industrial packaging fasteners to tapes for babies' diapers, is enormous. The 3M Co. alone makes more than 600 kinds. There are 25 other American producers and at least 22 foreign manufacturers.

"All the touch tape made last year would reach to the moon and back and leave enough left over to go around the world eight times," quipped a 3M executive.

THESE TAPES don't include ordinary glue paper tapes that have to be moistened.

This huge business got started almost by accident, says 3M. In the early 1920s, most automobile manufacturers painted practically all their new cars black. But many individualistic motorists had their cars repainted in two colors. This led to demand for a good masking tape for use in auto paint shops.

The paper tapes then available tended either not to stick well and let the paint smudge or to stick too well and pull off gobs of new paint when removed.

Richard G. Drew, now retired was then a sandpaper technician working for 3M, and the company gave him the job of developing a suitable stick-at-the-touch masking tape for automobile paintshops. The problem wasn't easy and it took Drew months to solve it. Then, within five years, 3M and Drew developed the first trans parent pressure-sensitive tape made out of cellophane. Transparent pressure-sensitive tapes now are used in practically every home, office, factory, shop, school and institution.

AND OUT OF this proliferated the billion dollar a year plus industry that has created many thousands of jobs and solved many problems.

The tapes come in a bewildering variety of sizes, strengths, colors, adaptability to temperatures, stretching, resistance to various chemicals, permeability and non-permeability.

One of the most unusual is a solid golf leaf tape used in space vehicles to insulate against extreme temperatures. Another is hypo-allergenic and moisture resistant yet allows the human skin to breathe through it. It is used in surgery. Diaper tapes have largely replaced safety pins and the garment industry uses a wide variety of fastening and mending pressure-sensitive tapes.

Pressure-sensitive reflector tapes and electrical tapes in many varieties are familiar to everyone. And the heavier packaging touch tapes have largely replaced cords and even nails, screws and bolts in many kinds of packaging.

STILL ANOTHER family of these tapes is just coming on the market. A series of mending tapes is being made by 3M so sticky and strong they can be used for repairs on concrete and various ceramics that nothing would stick to well in the past.

The tapes even have attracted the attention of the art world. Robert Kerns, a Minnesota artist, "paints" pictures by fastening bits of colored tape to paper canvas. He has just had his first one-man show in New York.

Dr. Ira Melnicoff will discuss "Arthritis — Facts, Fancy and Fiction" at 8 p.m. Oct. 23 at St. Paul Lutheran Church, 18 S. School St., Mount Prospect.

"We want to dispel much of the misinformation people have about arthritis and what causes it. Arthritis is not a hopeless disease," said Melnicoff, a member of the medical staff at Lutheran General.

UFO trip followers land in state—then disappear

FOX LAKE, Ill. (UPI) — A band of persons who may have been followers of a strange couple promising a UFO jaunt to another planet used an Illinois state park as a staging point for almost a week, park officials said Tuesday.

The group of campers, some 50 to 70 strong, appeared to be financially pressed — even to borrowing a nickel from a gateman to help pay a camp fee. They were traveling in cars with license plates from Oregon, Washington, Colorado, Texas, Arizona and one Canadian province.

State Forest Ranger Mick Egan said the group began arriving at Chain O'Lakes State Park, near Fox Lake and about 45 miles northwest of Chicago, on Oct. 1 or 2. Others arrived on Oct. 4, he said, the group held a quiet meeting on Oct. 6 and left Oct. 7 after newspapers in the area published reports about the mysterious UFO group.

Egan said he had no idea where the group went, and there was no trace of them in the Midwest for the past week.

LICENSE PLATE numbers on three of the cars were reported to have matched those of cars that disappeared with 23 persons from Oregon after a meeting at Waldport, Ore.

The Oregon license plates were registered to Michael D. Kelly, Blodgett, Ore., Gerald Anderson, Eugene, Ore., and E. Dan Staggs, Springfield, Ore. Park officials said a man using the name Al Kaplan registered for the Kelly car and D. D. Staggs for the Staggs vehicle.

A woman appeared to be in charge of the group, some sources reported.

At meetings in Waldport and elsewhere in the Pacific Northwest, a woman known as "she" and a hollow-eyed man known as "he" were reported to have enlisted followers for a promised UFO trip.

FRIENDS AND RELATIVES of missing persons reported to have joined the band have expressed concern about their whereabouts and well-being. Ranger Egan said the group that camped at Chain O'Lakes "were clean and neat and very well behaved."

"A small problem arose," he said. "All of these people wanted to camp on the cheapest area and we didn't have enough room there to accommodate them.

"Some of those arriving on Oct. 4 couldn't raise a dollar. They borrowed a nickel from the gateman to make it. But they paid him back a couple of days later."

Local history topic on radio Sunday

Schaumburg, Elk Grove Village and Roselle will be discussed on "Focus: Northwest" Sunday 8 a.m. and 9 p.m. on WWMM, 92.7 FM.

Moderators Darlene Tufano and Juila Ehresmann of Harper College discuss local history with Ellsworth Meineke, member of the Schaumburg Historical Society; Nancy Vanderweel, Elk Grove Village trustee; and Ruby Karner, Roselle village clerk.

The program is the fourth and last in the special "Focus: Northwest" Bicentennial Series.

Congressional panel plans Chicago hearing

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., Tuesday said the Congressional Joint Economic Committee, which he heads, will open a series of regional hearings Monday in Chicago.

He said the hearings will be concerned with "achieving full employment and stable prices."

Chicago Mayor Richard Daley was to be the first witness at the hearings due to be broadcast on public television WTTW.

Members scheduled to take part in the Chicago hearings include Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., Rep. Richard Bolling, D-Mo., and Rep. Clarence Brown, R-Ohio.

Additional regional hearings are scheduled for New York, Boston, Atlanta, and Los Angeles.

"If the government is ever going to get our national economy back in shape," Humphrey said, "it is essential that policymakers understand what is happening to the economies of our states, cities and neighborhoods and begin with solutions that make sense where people live and work."

He said the committee's report to Congress will include legislative recommendations.

Mental health author to speak Tuesday

The conflict between state mental institutions and individual freedom will be discussed Tuesday in the first of a series of dinner meetings sponsored by the Northwest Mental Health Center, Arlington Heights.

The meeting is in Hans' Bavarian Lodge, 931 N. Milwaukee, Wheeling, beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Murphy is author of the recent book "Our Kindly Parent, the State," which has been reviewed in Harper's magazine and the Christian Science Monitor. Recently he has been representing children involved in the controversy surrounding the Elan homes for emotionally disturbed in Maine.

Trailers, motorhomes thrive despite high gas prices

by WILLIAM J. STANFIELD

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — Talk of dollar-a-gallon gasoline and gas shortages isn't hurting one business which depdnds heavily on people traveling to new places in search of fun and sun.

Fleetwood Enterprises, manufacturer of some of the best-known travel trailers and motorhomes on the holiday highways, says its business is better than ever.

And the trend is toward bigger and more expensive vehicles which eat up even more gasoline among a growing segment of recreational vehicle buyers — retired couples.

Fleetwood, which celebrated its 25th anniversary recently, reported record first quarter sales of $100 million on top of gross sales of more than $300 million last year, best in the company's history.

DURING THE PAST year, Fleetwood shipped more than 33,000 travel trailers and some 5,600 motor homes from its nearly three-score plants in 20 states and Canada. It also shipped nearly 15,000 mobile homes.

While other recreational vehicle manufacturers were faltering and wven folding during the gas shortages of two years ago, Fleetwood remained strong and even made plans to add new lines of trailers and motorhomes.

"People who were accustomed to going on vacations or packing up their trailers for a weekend in the mountains didn't pay much attention to the gas shortage," Fleetwood Pres. William W. Weide explained."They went ahead anyway and usually found that once they got out of the city, there was plenty of gas."

Fleetwood's recreational vehicles include brand names seen in virtually every campground. Its Prowler travel trailer is the No. 1 seller in the country and the Terry, another Fleetwood product, is the second best seller.

OTHER FLEETWOOD trailers are the Intruder, Taurus, Wilderness and Wild Country, and the company plans to introduce soon the luxurious Kenskill which will approach the top-of-the-line Holiday Rambler and Airstream in price.

Fleetwood motorhomes are the Pace-Arrow, Southwind and Coronado and the Tioga and Jamboree minihome lines.

Chairman John Crean, who started the firm 25 years ago, spends much of his time in contact with the people who have bought or are potential buyers of his vehicles.

With his wife, Donna, Crean travels 15,000 to 30,000 miles a year in one of his trailers or motorhomes, visiting his plants and staying in public and private campgrounds.

"I've always been able to get out among the consumers and get a pretty good idea of what they're looking for, what they want, and translate that into product and good design," Crean said.

The women's movement

Where is it going? Into Phase II

Is the women's movement finally making it? Over the past six years there have been significant advances as well as serious setbacks, but one thing is clear: the liberated woman is not a passing fancy. Pat Chapman Jones, active in the women's movement from the beginning, assesses the situation for Newspaper Enterprise Association and The Herald presents here her report.

Six years ago, thousands of women thronged streets throughout the country to commemorate the 50th anniversary of women's right to vote. In New York, the event was celebrated by a jubilant march down Fifth Avenue culminating in a mass demonstration in Bryant Park behind the Public Library.

"Wow," said feminist Kate Millett, author of the movement's new bible, "Sexual Politics" "We really have a movement now."

Where is that movement today?

There have been notable advances (ERA, abortion) as well as major setbacks.

THE EQUAL RIGHTS Amendment, a target issue, still remains unratified. The national day care centers bill, passed by Congress, suffered presidential veto and lies dormant. Women's right to abortion on demand, while confirmed by the United States Supreme Court, is being attacked in many ways in various parts of the country. Because of the recession, many jobs recently gained by women have been lost because of seniority rules.

And this summer at Mexico City, the much hailed International Women's Conference, sponsored by the United Nations, degenerated into a political forum.

Back home, there have been signs of open rifts between segments of the movement. One group, the Red Stockings, whose founding manifesto emphasized "sisterhood," issued a wordy document attacking editor and writer Gloria Steinem as "purported CIA agent."

IN ADDITION, the year has seen the growth of several national women's organizations dedicated to "teaching the art of pleasing the man in happy subservience."

Despite these losses, feminist leaders remain optimistic about the movement now and its future citing widespread acceptance and growth at the grass roots.

"You can compare the movement today to a kid who shoots up like a bean pole and then takes time filling out," noted one observer.

"We're going into Phase II," said Audrey Colom, president of the National Women's Political Caucus. "The era of confrontation is passing. We're moving to the nuts and bolts technical politics. It's not so dramatic, but this is how we are going to win the power. We're digging in for the long haul, learning that success in business or politics depends on a well-developed game plan. Shirleys (Chisholm) and Bellas (Abzug) don't just happen."

IF YOU JUDGE by numbers, the movement is certainly filling out at all levels. The National Organization of Women, founded in 1966, now boasts a membership of 50,000 here and abroad with major growth reported in suburban chapters. The National Women's Political Caucus, formed in 1971 with a membership of 271 women, has grown to a political force of 35,000 with organizations in nearly every state. The National Coalition of Labor Union Women, founded in 1974, has a roster of 4,000 members in 45 chapters.

Labor union organizations of white collar women office workers, who represent one-third of the female work force, report dramatic growth with almost 23,000 enrolled last year alone.

The growth, however, is more than just in organization numbers. It's in numbers of women gaining political power at all levels.

IN 1974, ACCORDING to the NWPC, more women were elected to Congress than ever before in history. There are currently 19 women in the House of Representatives; 610 women in state legislatures, twice as many as in 1969. Also at the state level, Connecticut has a woman governor, Ellen Grasso, the first to be elected on her own merit and not succeeding a husband. New York has a woman lieutenant governor, Mary Ann Krupsak.

Meanwhile, at the local level, women are running for a multitude of offices, from dog catcher to registrar of wills. In Texas, during the last election, 2,400 women were candidates for office throughout the state, according to a WPC survey.

There's a growing political awareness by all women, in the opinion of Ms. Colom.

"The growing consumer movement and demonstrations prove that women are becoming more political," she observed. "When a woman goes into a supermarket and refuses to buy beef, she's made a political decision. Look at the meat boycott. It was organized and led by women. It couldn't have happened without the movement."

The years have seen legislative gains in many areas. Domestic workers are now included in minimum wage legislation. In education, Title 9 prohibits discrimination — and discriminatory attitudes. The New York State Department of Education recently issued guidelines for a whole new educational system which bans sexism in everything from books to teacher attitudes. A presidential order prohibits job discrimination on the part of federal contractors.

RAPE BILLS, guarding the rights of victims, now exist in several states and are top priority in others. In California, in a recent decision, the judge is now prohibited from a traditional charge to the jury, "Rape is easily charged and hard to defend." In New York City, women have a special number to call and sympathetic officers to help them.

On the labor front there have been gains, too. Thanks to CLUW, many unions have formulated separate women's departments. Such a department is the women's division of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butchers, headed by CLUW founder and vice president Addie Wyatt.

Noted Ms. Wyatt, "For the first time during our lifetime, trade union women are being called on to make policy not only in the union but in every institution in the country. Every woman, activist or not, is being forced to take a good, hard look at herself — why she's working and what she expects out of that work. Often, she'll find the traditional woman's job to be easier and pay more money. In that knowledge, we've got strength."

OFFICE WORKERS are standing up and being counted, too. An independent union, District 65, which has offices in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles, is currently directing its efforts toward organizing women workers at universities and publishing houses. Among recent accomplishments: a new contract at Harper and Row, a pending election at Simon and Schuster.

Union spokesperson Margie Albert is enthusiastic about future prospects noting, "As offices become more mechanized they become more like factories. And, these positions pay less than most blue collar jobs. There are a lot of women office workers out there to be mobilized — 12 million of them."

Increasing numbers of women are engaged in top level research at universities. In academia and elsewhere, distorted Victorian concepts of the female, which influenced scientists such as Freud and Darwin, are being discarded. Data revealing role sharing in animal societies is being unearthed and publicized.

"WOMEN ARE discovering once buried research," says Elizabeth Fisher, editor of "Aphra," feminist literary publication, who is now writing a historical book on women. "Many anthropologists have had to retract earlier positions regarding male dominance."

The changes in our language itself indicate the pervasive nature of the movement, she added. "Ms," "person," "MCP," "sexist," she observed, are all words now in common use.

What of the future — and today's problems? Nobody expects the millenium overnight, a sign of the movement's new maturity.

"So, Mexico City was a disaster," said Karen DeCrow, NOW president. "It was a start. You can't expect people to shift gears instantaneously. Sexism has been going for 6,000 years."

THE IMPORTANT thing to remember," said suffragette and 80-year-old Pennsylvania activist Mildred Scott Olmsted, "is that the Mexico City conference was actually held and the women's movement has become international in scope. The movement has made enormous advances in this country. It's been a social revolution. In any revolution, you have the radical and moderate elements. Look at Portugal today. In our day, we had the suffragettes and the suffragists."

The key problem, as most women see it, is in enforcement of legislation benefiting women. "Women have to be there not only in passing bills but in enforcing them," summed up Ms. Colom. "We also have to make sure that the women we support are supporters of women's issues."

''QUALITY — THAT'S what counts," said Ms. Olmsted. "We must apply the same high standards to women that we do to men. We must be careful not to defend women just because they are women. We are human beings and, as such, we will have our crooks as well as our good 'guys'."

"Let's hope," said Elsa Puder Suplee, Pennsylvania woman political activist, "That we will grow and that as we grow, we won't lose our sense of kindness."

They're in business of achieving fair employment

EQUAL EMPLOYMENT consultants MaryEllen Feldman and Carol Karzen have put together a visual aid to help employers understand their legal obligations and employes their legal rights.

by MONICA PERIN

Just passing a law doesn't necessarily make it so.

Changing the realities of discrimination against women and minorities in the work force takes work, and that's where Carol Karzen and Mary Ellen Feldman of Buffalo Grove and Wheeling come in.

One year ago the women incorporated Karzen/Feldman and Associates, consultants on affirmative action. Since they they have advised a bank, college, hospital, school and other firms in the Chicago area on how to achieve both the letter and the spirit of affirmative action laws.

They have conducted numerous workshops for management and employes, women and minorities, on how to handle the employment problems each group encounters in its own specific role.

"It had become apparent that the government and employes were not seeing the results they had hoped for," said Mary Ellen, a journalism graduate of Northwestern University. She pointed to the series of fair employment laws and rulings that have been passed at both state and federal levels since 1968, but which have not been universally implemented due to resistance and the lack of government resources to enforce them.

Now, Mary Ellen added, requirements apply to more companies than ever before — including employers of as few as 25 persons — and they affect large numbers of people. After these latest applications of the law were passed, Mary Ellen and Carol decided someone needed to work with employers and help them achieve the goals of the law.

The two women had known each other since serving together on the Task Force on Sexism in Education, a coalition of parents in School Dist. 21. Both had been familiar with the issues of sexism in employment as well, and felt that with their combined expertise (Carol has degrees in clinical psychology from Northwestern and Loyola universities), they could offer employers something of benefit in terms of research and human relations.

"EMPLOYERS may want to make a change but not know how. We cover the whole affirmative action continuum — analysis of problems and goals, solutions, implementation, specific techniques for upgrading minorities and for minorities to upgrade themselves.

"We hold in-house workshops on affirmative action planning, employe advancement workshops, management workshops, sex and education workshops, career counseling."

Depending on what sort of help a company wants or needs, Carol and Mary Ellen's work can go on for several months. They have a staff of four and have employed as many as 34 additional consultants to deal with certain aspects of a job.

Attitudes toward equal employment — and the need for affirmative action plans — vary widely from company to company, even within a single industry, according to the women.

THEY ENCOUNTERED both ends of the spectrum in a single morning recently. At one firm, they called on a man whose whole function was to deal with the government regulations on employment. "He sat there with 50 affirmative action plans on his desk, talking on watts lines all over the country about all kinds of lawsuits.

"The president of the next company could care less — he said he'd broken the law before and he'd do it again, that women all want to be out of the office by 4:30."

In their management workshops the women stress that commitment to equal employment must come from the top and be transferred throughout management. Management often is not aware, they say, that "it's critical where minorities and women are hired, not just that they are hired. Ninety-three per cent of companies have only 10 per cent women managnent personnel."

COMPANIES often protest that they can't find enough women and minority persons with training in certain areas, such as engineering. According to Carol and Mary Ellen, this is often a valid complaint. Only four per cent of the engineers in the country, they say, are women.

"But companies might not be looking at a person's potential," they added, especially in the case of women and minorities.

The outlook for women and minorities in Illinois to find improved equal employment opportunities is mixed, Carol and Mary Ellen say. On the one hand, they believe Illinois "has one of the best laws" on the subject, especially with additional authority recently granted by the legislature.

THIS NEW authority enables the state's Fair Employment Practices Commission to initiate action against discriminatory employers rather than waiting for an employe to file a complaint.

Unfortunately, recent budget cuts affecting the FEPC will be a problem in making the law realistic, say the two consultants.

Their fears are confirmed by FEPC executive director Mel Jordan, who points out that the agency already is operating with a nine-month backlog of cases and will spend most of next year doing last year's work.

"We certainly have no more staff resources (with which to enforce the new legislation) than before. Our production can't be increased without more resources," said Jordan.

According to Jordan, initiation authority is only one of six new jurisdictions granted his agency in the legislation. But he has "no idea in what fashion we will be able to address" the expanded authority. He said the agency's efficiency has already been maximized and that his investigators handle 40 per cent more cases than other midwestern states with larger budgets and smaller populations.

Where is that movement today?

There have been notable advances (ERA, abortion) as well as major setbacks.

THE EQUAL RIGHTS Amendment, a target issue, still remains unratified. The national day care centers bill, passed by Congress, suffered presidential veto and lies dormant. Women's right to abortion on demand, while confirmed by the United States Supreme Court, is being attacked in many ways in various parts of the country. Because of the recession, many jobs recently gained by women have been lost because of seniority rules.

And this summer at Mexico City, the much hailed International Women's Conference, sponsored by the United Nations, degenerated into a political forum.

Back home, there have been signs of open rifts between segments of the movement. One group, the Red Stockings, whose founding manifesto emphasized "sisterhood," issued a wordy document attacking editor and writer Gloria Steinem as "purported CIA agent."

IN ADDITION, the year has seen the growth of several national women's organizations dedicated to "teaching the art of pleasing the man in happy subservience."

Despite these losses, feminist leaders remain optimistic about the movement now and its future citing widespread acceptance and growth at the grass roots.

"You can compare the movement today to a kid who shoots up like a bean pole and then takes time filling out," noted one observer.

"We're going into Phase II," said Audrey Colom, president of the National Women's Political Caucus. "The era of confrontation is passing. We're moving to the nuts and bolts technical politics. It's not so dramatic, but this is how we are going to win the power. We're digging in for the long haul, learning that success in business or politics depends on a well-developed game plan. Shirleys (Chisholm) and Bellas (Abzug) don't just happen."

IF YOU JUDGE by numbers, the movement is certainly filling out at all levels. The National Organization of Women, founded in 1966, now boasts a membership of 50,000 here and abroad with major growth reported in suburban chapters. The National Women's Political Caucus, formed in 1971 with a membership of 271 women, has grown to a political force of 35,000 with organizations in nearly every state. The National Coalition of Labor Union Women, founded in 1974, has a roster of 4,000 members in 45 chapters.

Labor union organizations of white collar women office workers, who represent one-third of the female work force, report dramatic growth with almost 23,000 enrolled last year alone.

The growth, however, is more than just in organization numbers. It's in numbers of women gaining political power at all levels.

IN 1974, ACCORDING to the NWPC, more women were elected to Congress than ever before in history. There are currently 19 women in the House of Representatives; 610 women in state legislatures, twice as many as in 1969. Also at the state level, Connecticut has a woman governor, Ellen Grasso, the first to be elected on her own merit and not succeeding a husband. New York has a woman lieutenant governor, Mary Ann Krupsak.

Meanwhile, at the local level, women are running for a multitude of offices, from dog catcher to registrar of wills. In Texas, during the last election, 2,400 women were candidates for office throughout the state, according to a WPC survey.

There's a growing political awareness by all women, in the opinion of Ms. Colom.

"The growing consumer movement and demonstrations prove that women are becoming more political," she observed. "When a woman goes into a supermarket and refuses to buy beef, she's made a political decision. Look at the meat boycott. It was organized and led by women. It couldn't have happened without the movement."

The years have seen legislative gains in many areas. Domestic workers are now included in minimum wage legislation. In education, Title 9 prohibits discrimination — and discriminatory attitudes. The New York State Department of Education recently issued guidelines for a whole new educational system which bans sexism in everything from books to teacher attitudes. A presidential order prohibits job discrimination on the part of federal contractors.

RAPE BILLS, guarding the rights of victims, now exist in several states and are top priority in others. In California, in a recent decision, the judge is now prohibited from a traditional charge to the jury, "Rape is easily charged and hard to defend." In New York City, women have a special number to call and sympathetic officers to help them.

On the labor front there have been gains, too. Thanks to CLUW, many unions have formulated separate women's departments. Such a department is the women's division of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butchers, headed by CLUW founder and vice president Addie Wyatt.

Noted Ms. Wyatt, "For the first time during our lifetime, trade union women are being called on to make policy not only in the union but in every institution in the country. Every woman, activist or not, is being forced to take a good, hard look at herself — why she's working and what she expects out of that work. Often, she'll find the traditional woman's job to be easier and pay more money. In that knowledge, we've got strength."

OFFICE WORKERS are standing up and being counted, too. An independent union, District 65, which has offices in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles, is currently directing its efforts toward organizing women workers at universities and publishing houses. Among recent accomplishments: a new contract at Harper and Row, a pending election at Simon and Schuster.

Union spokesperson Margie Albert is enthusiastic about future prospects noting, "As offices become more mechanized they become more like factories. And, these positions pay less than most blue collar jobs. There are a lot of women office workers out there to be mobilized — 12 million of them."

Increasing numbers of women are engaged in top level research at universities. In academia and elsewhere, distorted Victorian concepts of the female, which influenced scientists such as Freud and Darwin, are being discarded. Data revealing role sharing in animal societies is being unearthed and publicized.

"WOMEN ARE discovering once buried research," says Elizabeth Fisher, editor of "Aphra," feminist literary publication, who is now writing a historical book on women. "Many anthropologists have had to retract earlier positions regarding male dominance."

The changes in our language itself indicate the pervasive nature of the movement, she added. "Ms," "person," "MCP," "sexist," she observed, are all words now in common use.

What of the future — and today's problems? Nobody expects the millenium overnight, a sign of the movement's new maturity.

"So, Mexico City was a disaster," said Karen DeCrow, NOW president. "It was a start. You can't expect people to shift gears instantaneously. Sexism has been going for 6,000 years."

THE IMPORTANT thing to remember," said suffragette and 80-year-old Pennsylvania activist Mildred Scott Olmsted, "is that the Mexico City conference was actually held and the women's movement has become international in scope. The movement has made enormous advances in this country. It's been a social revolution. In any revolution, you have the radical and moderate elements. Look at Portugal today. In our day, we had the suffragettes and the suffragists."

The key problem, as most women see it, is in enforcement of legislation benefiting women. "Women have to be there not only in passing bills but in enforcing them," summed up Ms. Colom. "We also have to make sure that the women we support are supporters of women's issues."

''QUALITY — THAT'S what counts," said Ms. Olmsted. "We must apply the same high standards to women that we do to men. We must be careful not to defend women just because they are women. We are human beings and, as such, we will have our crooks as well as our good 'guys'."

"Let's hope," said Elsa Puder Suplee, Pennsylvania woman political activist, "That we will grow and that as we grow, we won't lose our sense of kindness."

They're in business of achieving fair employment

EQUAL EMPLOYMENT consultants MaryEllen Feldman and Carol Karzen have put together a visual aid to help employers understand their legal obligations and employes their legal rights.

by MONICA PERIN

Just passing a law doesn't necessarily make it so.

Changing the realities of discrimination against women and minorities in the work force takes work, and that's where Carol Karzen and Mary Ellen Feldman of Buffalo Grove and Wheeling come in.

One year ago the women incorporated Karzen/Feldman and Associates, consultants on affirmative action. Since they they have advised a bank, college, hospital, school and other firms in the Chicago area on how to achieve both the letter and the spirit of affirmative action laws.

They have conducted numerous workshops for management and employes, women and minorities, on how to handle the employment problems each group encounters in its own specific role.

"It had become apparent that the government and employes were not seeing the results they had hoped for," said Mary Ellen, a journalism graduate of Northwestern University. She pointed to the series of fair employment laws and rulings that have been passed at both state and federal levels since 1968, but which have not been universally implemented due to resistance and the lack of government resources to enforce them.

Now, Mary Ellen added, requirements apply to more companies than ever before — including employers of as few as 25 persons — and they affect large numbers of people. After these latest applications of the law were passed, Mary Ellen and Carol decided someone needed to work with employers and help them achieve the goals of the law.

The two women had known each other since serving together on the Task Force on Sexism in Education, a coalition of parents in School Dist. 21. Both had been familiar with the issues of sexism in employment as well, and felt that with their combined expertise (Carol has degrees in clinical psychology from Northwestern and Loyola universities), they could offer employers something of benefit in terms of research and human relations.

"EMPLOYERS may want to make a change but not know how. We cover the whole affirmative action continuum — analysis of problems and goals, solutions, implementation, specific techniques for upgrading minorities and for minorities to upgrade themselves.

"We hold in-house workshops on affirmative action planning, employe advancement workshops, management workshops, sex and education workshops, career counseling."

Depending on what sort of help a company wants or needs, Carol and Mary Ellen's work can go on for several months. They have a staff of four and have employed as many as 34 additional consultants to deal with certain aspects of a job.

Attitudes toward equal employment — and the need for affirmative action plans — vary widely from company to company, even within a single industry, according to the women.

THEY ENCOUNTERED both ends of the spectrum in a single morning recently. At one firm, they called on a man whose whole function was to deal with the government regulations on employment. "He sat there with 50 affirmative action plans on his desk, talking on watts lines all over the country about all kinds of lawsuits.

"The president of the next company could care less — he said he'd broken the law before and he'd do it again, that women all want to be out of the office by 4:30."

In their management workshops the women stress that commitment to equal employment must come from the top and be transferred throughout management. Management often is not aware, they say, that "it's critical where minorities and women are hired, not just that they are hired. Ninety-three per cent of companies have only 10 per cent women managnent personnel."

COMPANIES often protest that they can't find enough women and minority persons with training in certain areas, such as engineering. According to Carol and Mary Ellen, this is often a valid complaint. Only four per cent of the engineers in the country, they say, are women.

"But companies might not be looking at a person's potential," they added, especially in the case of women and minorities.

The outlook for women and minorities in Illinois to find improved equal employment opportunities is mixed, Carol and Mary Ellen say. On the one hand, they believe Illinois "has one of the best laws" on the subject, especially with additional authority recently granted by the legislature.

THIS NEW authority enables the state's Fair Employment Practices Commission to initiate action against discriminatory employers rather than waiting for an employe to file a complaint.

Unfortunately, recent budget cuts affecting the FEPC will be a problem in making the law realistic, say the two consultants.

Their fears are confirmed by FEPC executive director Mel Jordan, who points out that the agency already is operating with a nine-month backlog of cases and will spend most of next year doing last year's work.

"We certainly have no more staff resources (with which to enforce the new legislation) than before. Our production can't be increased without more resources," said Jordan.

According to Jordan, initiation authority is only one of six new jurisdictions granted his agency in the legislation. But he has "no idea in what fashion we will be able to address" the expanded authority. He said the agency's efficiency has already been maximized and that his investigators handle 40 per cent more cases than other midwestern states with larger budgets and smaller populations.

by KAY MARSH

Maybe you can't judge a book by its cover, but you can learn a lot about food products simply by reading the labels. Here's a little true-false packaging quiz to test your Consumer Information Quotient.

1. All foods must have informative labels.

False. Few raw and unprocessed foods, such as meat and produce, have informative labels.

2. Food manufacturers are not concerned with consumer information in their packaging.

False. Many provide nutrition labeling and other information even when it is not required. And many include product guarantees, serving suggestions, recipes, and other facts to help you as a consumer.

3. Open dating tells you the date the product was made.

False. It tells you the last date a product should be purchased to insure peak freshness and flavor.

4. Most grocery products these days bear a number and linear bar symbol. This nationally-coordinated system of product identification is called the Universal Product Code (UPC).

True. The UPC is designed so that an electronic scanner at the check-out counter will read the symbol and automatically transmit the information to the computer that controls the cash register.

5. Advocates of UPC believe it will help keep prices down by offering speedier checkouts and higher accuracy, plus reduced labor costs for price-marking items.

True. They also say it will lower warehouse costs and aid in better inventory control.

6. UPC numbers are chosen at random.

False. The first five numbers designate the manufacturer. The second five represent a specific product.

7. Government regulations require that certain basic information appear on the label, including product name, manufacturer's name and address, net weight and ingredient listing.

True. Exceptions are familiar processed foods, such as mayonnaise, for which Standards of Identity have been established. Standarized foods that meet these government requirements are not required to have ingredients listed on the label.

8. Nutrition labeling is required.

False. Nutrition labeling is voluntary unless a nutrition claim is made for the food, or a nutrient is added to a product. (The latter, however, does not apply to products fortified to meet a Standard of Identity, as described above.)

9. Nutrition information must include number of servings per container and calorie content per serving.

True.

11. Protein, carbohydrate and fat content per serving are given in ounces.

False. They are given in gram weight.

11. Nutrition labeling also requires the percentage of U.S. Recommended Daily Allowances (U.S. RDAs) per serving for protein and various vitamins and minerals.

True. Other nutrients and minerals can also be included.

12. RDA figures are usually given in terms of requirements for an adult male.

13. It's a good idea to drain off the liquid from canned fruits and vegetables.

False. Nutrition labeling gives you information on the entire contents. You drain away nutrients with the liquid.

14. Nutrition labeling insures good nutrition at lower cost.

False. Labels provide information, not education or results. You have to use the data.

ABOUT YOUR SCORE: If you got 10 or more right, consider yourself an informed consumer. If you got less than 10, read (and heed) at least a few good labels. True, the style may be stilted and the dialogue dull, but the plot is vitally important: your budget and your health.

Blankets need warm water for washing, rinsing

The homeline by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: I have some regular wool blankets that have to be washed. Do I use warm water to wash them and warm water for rinsing too? Thank you for specific instructions.—Viola B. McElroy

Yes, you use warm water for washing and for rinsing. These instructions are for washing in the washer. If the binding is dirty, brush with a paste of detergent or soap. Fill washer with warm water and add detergent or soap and agitate to dissolve this. Stop the machine and put in blanket. Let if soal for 10 to 15 minutes. Move washer dial to the end of the wash cycle to drain water out. Move the dial to deep rinse. Then let machine fill with warm water and finish automatically. If using a dryer, put in a dryer using a high temperature for a short time — about 10 to 15 minutes — or until blanket is still slightly damp. Finish drying on two lines or on a flat surface, like a table. If not using a dryer, put blanket over two parallel lines in the shade to dry.

Dear Dorothy: Cold weather is coming and for those whose knees get cold and achy, I have a hint. Cut off the toes of old warm ankle socks, pull on with the heel part on top so that it fits over the knee. It makes less bulk under the knee than the professionally sold knee warmers, as the heel bulge fits the knee.—Miss Gertrude Wartchow

Dear Dorothy: For those who fret over hard cookies, there's a good way to make originally soft cookies-turned-hard soft again. Just put into a plastic bag with a piece of fresh bread.—Marilyn Cooper

Dear Dorothy: Don't know where I saw the tip, but ever since I've been using the vegetable peeler on celery, cleaning and getting off the strings has been a cinch.—Helen D'Antonio

Protect yourself: get it in writing

by JULIE MARTOCCIO

Dear Attorney Martoccio,

Last winter I bought a '67 Pontiac with lots of additions for my son. In the spring we sold it for $800 to a 19-year-old boy who paid $200. I took his word that he would pay the $600 balance in two weeks. About the time the payment was due, he asked for title. I reassigned the title, holding it with the lien against the car.

A couple of weeks later, my son saw the car in front of the boy's folks' house in partially stripped condition and was told by neighbors they thought he damaged the engine. The carburetor was one item stripped. We had the car towed to a storage space where it is. I have never heard from him again nor do I have keys. The police were advised when we towed it.

MY QUESTION IS: Is there any recourse to get the $600 owed or get the value of parts he stripped, including a good radio, tires, carburetor, speakers? If the engine is not damaged it would cost $500 to $600 to replace missing items and $500 more for used SH engine. I'm sure his plan all the time was not to pay for the car and get what he could from stripping.

Also, if we must junk the car, what is the proper handling of the title which is in his name with lien to me? —W.C.B.

Dear W.C.B.,

We all know better, but we all do it at some time or another. We live and should learn, but we keep on forgetting that the best way to protect ourselves is to get everything in writing.

YOU CAN'T beat a contract when it comes to protecting yourself against others who are unreliable or deliberately out to cheat you. A contract not only spells out everything to protect the parties involved but gives a certain peace of mind knowing that future problems are eliminated or at least reduced.

You will now have to send a letter to the Illinois Secretary of State for a Repossession of Title form. I'm afraid though that the only way you might get the parts back or a money judgment against the boy for the balance due is to file a suit against him.

Dear Attorney Martoccio,

We are a couple who have our home and some money in the bank in joint tenancy. I would like to know if a will should be made, in case either of us passes away. I would want my wife to have it, if I pass away, or if she passes away, I would have it. Will joint ownership take care of this?—E.B.

Dear E.B.

A joint tenancy is a popular device for a husband and wife especially where there are no children. The procedure is a simple one when one or the other passes on. The safe deposit box might be sealed for a few days until its contents are examined and appraised by inheritance tax representatives. After that the surviving spouse might have to get an inheritance tax consent in order to get the joint bank accounts changed over to the survivor's name.

TITLE TO an automobile is no problem either since it could be transferred to the survivor's name by the simple process of filing a death certificate and a small estate affidavit with the State of Illinois Automobile Registration Department.

I would hesitate, however, to say that you may not need a will since the facts you submitted are rather sketchy. You do not say whether you have children, other personal property, etc. There are circumstances and contingencies that, while unusual, might still affect the need for a will. If you have a lawyer who is familiar with the facts, you might ask him or her to review what you own and then determine if a will would be advisable.

BICENTENNIAL LAW BRIEFS:

What are the earliest roots of our legal system? Believe it or not, they go back to 1900 B. C. at approximately the time that the Code of Hammurabi came into being. The Code was designed to rule the ancient Sumerians who lived along the Tigris and Euphrates rivers. Hammurabi was king of the West Semitic dynasty of Babylonia whose name was bestowed upon the body of law which was the first known system of law with 3700 of them inscribed upon a column 8 feet high describing various offenses and penalties. It was, in our language, Criminal Law.

One particularly discriminatory law provided capital punishment by drowning to an unfaithful wife. Or, believe it or not, to a wine seller who cheated her customers, all wine sellers being female during those times!

(Readers are invited to submit questions regarding legal problems of women and children. Names and facts that would identify the writer are withheld on request. Attorney Martoccio's column is to inform and not advise. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Protect yourself: get it in writing

by JULIE MARTOCCIO

Dear Attorney Martoccio,

Last winter I bought a '67 Pontiac with lots of additions for my son. In the spring we sold it for $800 to a 19-year-old boy who paid $200. I took his word that he would pay the $600 balance in two weeks. About the time the payment was due, he asked for title. I reassigned the title, holding it with the lien against the car.

A couple of weeks later, my son saw the car in front of the boy's folks' house in partially stripped condition and was told by neighbors they thought he damaged the engine. The carburetor was one item stripped. We had the car towed to a storage space where it is. I have never heard from him again nor do I have keys. The police were advised when we towed it.

MY QUESTION IS: Is there any recourse to get the $600 owed or get the value of parts he stripped, including a good radio, tires, carburetor, speakers? If the engine is not damaged it would cost $500 to $600 to replace missing items and $500 more for used SH engine. I'm sure his plan all the time was not to pay for the car and get what he could from stripping.

Also, if we must junk the car, what is the proper handling of the title which is in his name with lien to me? —W.C.B.

Dear W.C.B.,

We all know better, but we all do it at some time or another. We live and should learn, but we keep on forgetting that the best way to protect ourselves is to get everything in writing.

YOU CAN'T beat a contract when it comes to protecting yourself against others who are unreliable or deliberately out to cheat you. A contract not only spells out everything to protect the parties involved but gives a certain peace of mind knowing that future problems are eliminated or at least reduced.

You will now have to send a letter to the Illinois Secretary of State for a Repossession of Title form. I'm afraid though that the only way you might get the parts back or a money judgment against the boy for the balance due is to file a suit against him.

Dear Attorney Martoccio,

We are a couple who have our home and some money in the bank in joint tenancy. I would like to know if a will should be made, in case either of us passes away. I would want my wife to have it, if I pass away, or if she passes away, I would have it. Will joint ownership take care of this?—E.B.

Dear E.B.

A joint tenancy is a popular device for a husband and wife especially where there are no children. The procedure is a simple one when one or the other passes on. The safe deposit box might be sealed for a few days until its contents are examined and appraised by inheritance tax representatives. After that the surviving spouse might have to get an inheritance tax consent in order to get the joint bank accounts changed over to the survivor's name.

TITLE TO an automobile is no problem either since it could be transferred to the survivor's name by the simple process of filing a death certificate and a small estate affidavit with the State of Illinois Automobile Registration Department.

I would hestitate, however, to say that you may not need a will since the facts you submitted are rather sketchy. You do not say whether you have children, other personal property, etc. There are circumstances and contingencies that, while unusual, might still affect the need for a will. If you have a lawyer who is familiar with the facts, you might ask him or her to review what you own and then determine if a will would be advisable.

BICENTENNIAL LAW BRIEFS:

What are the earliest roots of our legal system? Believe it or not, they go back to 1900 B. C. at approximately the time that the Code of Hammurabi came into being. The Code was designed to rule the ancient Sumerians who lived along the Tigris and Euphrates rivers. Hammurabi was king of the West Semitic dynasty of Babylonia whose name was bestowed upon the body of law which was the first known system of law with 3700 of them inscribed upon a column 8 feet high describing various offenses and penalties. It was, in our language, Criminal Law.

One particularly discriminatory law provided capital punishment by drowning to an unfaithful wife. Or, believe it or not, to a wine seller who cheated her customers, all wine sellers being female during those times!

(Readers are invited to submit questions regarding legal problems of women and children. Names and facts that would identify the writer are withheld on request. Attorney Martoccio's column is to inform and not advise. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Reds outslug Red Sox 6-5 in 'home run derby'

World Series

Cincinnati, (UPI) — Joe Morgan, the little man who plays like a giant, climaxed a homer-filled shootout with a bases-loaded single with one out in the 10th inning Tuesday night to give the Cincinnati Reds a 6-5 victory over the Boston Red Sox and the lead in the World Series, two games to one.

Cincinnati now needs just two more victories in the best-of-seven series to win its first world championship since 1940.

Morgan, expected to win National League most valuable player honors this season, delivered his game-winning hit off reliever Roger Moret after the Reds had taken advantage of a throwing error by the usually reliable Red Sox catcher, Carlton Fisk.

Fisk set the stage for the Reds' winning rally when he threw pinch-hitter George Armbrister's sacrifice bunt attempt into centerfield on what looked like a sure double play opportunity.

Cesar Geronimo had opened the inning with a single and wound up at third on the error with Armbrister taking second. Pete Rose then was given an intentional pass to load the bases and, after Moret struck out pinch-hitter Merv Rettenmund, Morgan slammed a pitch over the head of Fred Lynn in center to score Geronimo with the winning run.

Prior to Morgan's 10th inning heroics, the game had been highlighted by a record-tying home run barrage. Each team hit three home runs, with Johnny Bench, Dave Concepcion and Cesar Geronimo connecting for the Reds and Fisk, Bernie Carbo and Dwight Evans belting homers for Boston. Carbo's homer was only the 11th pinch-hit homer in World Series history.

The Reds appeared to have won the game in the ninth inning but some questionable strategy on the part of Manager Sparky Anderson enabled the Red Sox to tie the score. Reliever Will McEnaney, the fourth Reds' pitcher, struck out Fred Lynn to open the inning but gave up a single to Rich Burleson.

Anderson, known as "Captain Hook" because of the way he yanks pitchers so quickly, then summoned Rawly Eastwick, who immediately was tagged for a game-tying homer by Evans.

It was the Red Sox who launched the home run derby when Fisk led off the second inning with a homer off starter Gary Nolan to give Boston a 1-0 lead. And, for a while it appeared that fun was all Red Sox' starter Rick Wise would need.

Wise, who had no-hit the Reds at Riverfront Stadium in 1971, when he was with the Philadelphia Phillies, did not allow a hit over the first three innings and had retired the first two batters in the fourth before a walk to Tony Perez led to his undoing.

Perez, not known for his baserunning ability, surprised the Red Sox by stealing second. It was only the second steal for the big first baseman this season, the other coming on the tailend of a double steal in the next-to-last game of the regular season.

Apparently unnerved by the stolen base, Wise grooved a fat pitch to Bench who drove it 400 feet into the left-centerfield stands for his third career World Series' homer to give the Reds a 2-1 lead.

Concepcion led off with a homer over the left-field fence and Geronimo followed with another blast over the rightfield fence, marking the first time back-to-back homers had been hit in a World Series by a National League team.

After Darcy struck out, Rose unloaded a long drive over the head of Lynn in centerfield for a triple and scored the final run of the inning on a sacrifice fly by Morgan.

Pirate golfers take 2nd straight crown

by KEITH REINHARD
Golf Editor

"It helps ease the pain a little bit," smiled Bill Schultz, Palatine golf coach.

He was admiring the Mid-Suburban League golf trophy, a handsome piece of hardware that his charges had just captured Tuesday. It will form a matching set with the one annexed just about a year ago under similar circumstances.

And Schultz was talking about the title in terms of another prize that slipped away. "The kids needed this one after failing to qualify as a team for the sectionals. They came so close . . . and they saw so many other teams of comparative abilities make the cut. This one at least allows us to finish the season on a happy note."

The Pirates were actually bettered Thursday at Buffalo Grove Golf Club by one of those squads still alive in the state tourney. Prospect, led by the sizzling medalist performance of Paul Moats, fired a 311 to edge out Palatine by three strokes for tournament honors. But like last year at Mount Prospect Country Club when the Knights claimed top meet prize but still lost to Schultz's gang for over-all MSL laurels, George Bork's group

With the competition for team honors pretty much cut and dried, the spotlight focused heavily on the battle for individual medals . . . a skirmish that involved a crop of surprise contenders. Following Moats were Palatine's regular aces, Mike Sievers at 73 and Nick Zambole at 74.

After that, however, a host of 77s pushed some of the favored golfers including defending medalist Ed Stubbs of Hersey, Knight sharpshooter Scott Spielmann and Buffalo Grove soph whiz Mike Marshall, down the ladder.

There were half a dozen who tied at 77. After the playoffs it was Conant's Randy Severinsen snagging the fourth place ribbon, Huskie Kevin Krahn pulling up fifth, Joe Husar of Hoffman Estates notching sixth, Ken Miller of hosting Rolling Meadows earning seventh, Wheeling's Dave Rice claiming eighth and Tom Martindale of Forest View finishing ninth.

Perennial powerhouse Lake County swept off with top honors at the 13-team gathering held at the Wedgewood layout in Joliet. The state gathering will also be conducted on this course Oct. 24-25.

Other golfing action Tuesday had St. Viator placing third at the Suburban Catholic North conference meet while Fremd, sparked by Win Bruning, swept off with championship honors at the Mid-Suburban's frosh-soph tournament.

Receivers move into area football spotlight

by KEITH REINHARD

A gangly colt and a human dynamo.

Those are a couple of the more descriptive phrases issued this week by North Division coaches on the subject of two of the finest pass receivers in the area.

Arlington's Tom North and Buffalo Grove's George Bastable enjoyed outstanding efforts over the past weekend and now rank 1-2 in total receptions, reception yardage and pass touchdowns, according to six-game overall statistics compiled for the Paddock area and released today.

North, a 6-3 junior, pulled in three touchdown passes at Wheeling Friday to all but turn back Wheeling singlehandedly. His mentor, Chuck Haines, recalled bringing him up to the varsity last fall in the middle of his sophomore year, saying: "We needed someone who could catch the ball and Tom was our nominee, even though we knew it would mean converting him from a running back."

The coaching staff looked on him as a gangling colt . . . a thoroughbred perhaps . . . but a very young one all the same.

"Tom is still maturing physically," Haines said.

"We feel hehas the tools to develop into one of the all-time standout receivers at Arlington . . . elusiveness . . . deceptive speed . . . and most of all, excellent hands."

George Bastable

Not to mention brains. North ranks right at the top of his class academically. Of course his job is made that much easier by having an astute athlete on the other end of the aerial maneuver and North's partner, Matt Shaughnessy, hasn't been doing all that bad himself.

Senior Shaughnessy has taken over the area leadership in passing yardage (777) and touchdown passes thrown (nine). Meanwhile North has now accrued five TDs for the campaign to also move into the local scoring ranks as well.

Over at Buffalo Grove last Saturday, spirits weren't as high after the game. The Bison had dropped a heartbreaker to Hersey. But even the verdict couldn't cloud over a dazzling performance by the 5-11 senior Bastable.

The two-way Grove veteran hauled in seven passes including one for a touchdown while virtually sitting down and another in the late going with no less than four defenders closing in on him."

"I know he looks great on some of his receptions, but George usually looks even better on the ones he misses," Bison coach Grant Blaney chuckled. "Sometimes they're 10 feet over his head or 10 yards down the field ahead of him but you can still count on George to try for them."

That's when Blaney hit on the dynamo comparison. "He's low key in school, gets along with everybody, students of all types, faculty, administrators, and he just fires up when he gets out on the football field.

"George is also the second leading tackler on our team," the coach continued. "That's probably not supposed to be a good defensive trait, since he's a safety. But there's just no stopping him . . . he's all over the field."

Bastable, like North, can give some of the credit for his high reception marks to the guy on the other end of the pass. Buffalo Grove quarterback Brian Zimmer connected for over 200 yards through the air last week and has moved up into second place on the area passing list at 716.

Among the leading signal callers, Zimmer also has the excellent distinction of owning the lowest interception rate . . . just one for every 36 attempts.

While North, Bastable, Shaughnessy and Zimmer make their moves to command top posts along the air ways, Palatine's Jim Popp continues to rule the turf. He now has a whopping 300-yard advantage over the next leading area rusher (Schaumburg's Russ Zonca) as he nears the magic 1,000 mark.

Popp has also assumed the leadership in scoring although in this department, the race is extremely tight. Just two points separate him from Bison Ben Orcutt and Zonca has moved to within four of the lead.

Prospect runners edge Hoffman

by ART MUGALIAN
Cross Country Editor

The Prospect cross country team came up with its biggest victory of the season Tuesday by edging the Hoffman Hawks, 26-31, on the three-mile Hoffman Estates course.

The win for coach Joe Wanner's Knights gave them an unblemished 6-0 record in Mid-Suburban South dual meets and clinched the South title. Prospect finished one game ahead of Hoffman at 5-1.

The Knights will join North division champion Fremd (5-0) as the only league unbeaten when the MSL runs its conference meet next Tuesday at Union Oil.

Pacing the victory for Prospect was senior Bill Hrbek, who traversed the rugged forest preserve course in 15:34 to set a record. Ten seconds behind Hrbek was his teammate, junior Jack Pittman.

Junior Matt Lawson (16:04) was Prospect's third man in fifth place, followed immediately by sophomore mate Mark Smith (16:11). The Knights' fifth man was another sophomore, Dave Hayes, who came in 13th.

"Hrbek and Pittman ran really tough," said Wanner, who watched his first two harriers battle Hoffman's Sam Cox for the early lead. "And Smith came on real strong — he finally ran a good race."

Smith, who had run what Wanner characterized as poor races the last three times out, stuck with it and passed a Hoffman runner in the final quarter-mile.

Cox was Hoffman's first finisher in third place (15:58), followed by Kevin Rooney (15:59). But Lawson and Smith broke in front of the rest of the Hawks' usually tight pack.

"You have to give Prospect credit," said Hoffman coach Jim Swift. "They ran a really good race today."

Wanner returned the compliment. "I'll tell you what kind of a gentleman Jih Swift is," he said. "He sent me a map of this course and invited us over to look at it."

The Knights benefited from the exposure, Wanner insisted. Hoffman's course is long, winding, and bumpy. The rains that fell shortly before the start of Tuesday's varsity race didn't make it any easier.

In the only other meet Tuesday, Schaumburg moved ahead of Conant in the final South standings with a 26-31 win over the Cougars. The individual winner was Conant junior Dan Cummings, but the Saxons put six in the top 10.

Forest View at Rolling Meadows was postponed and rescheduled for today.

South standings: Prospect 6-0, Hoffman 5-1, Forest View 3-2, Rolling Meadows 3-2, Schaumburg 2-4, Conant 1-5, Elk Grove 0-6.

North standings: Fremd 5-0, Palatine 4-1, Arlington 3-2, Hersey 2-3, Buffalo Grove 1-4, Wheeling 0-5.

Falcon junior harrier meet today

The fifth annual Forest View Falcon Junior High Cross Country Invitational is scheduled for today at Forest View High School beginning at 4 p.m.

Last year's defending champion, Dempster Junior High School, will be hard-pressed to defend their title against a rugged team from Friendship Junior High, according to meet director Bill Mohrmann.

The Forest View meet is one of the only meets of its kind, drawing the various feeder schools in the Falcon area.

State ahead for Harper

Harper closed out the final week of the regular tennis season prior to the junior college state meet at Sauk Valley this Friday and Saturday with a seventh place finish in the IAIAW state tournament at Eastern Illinois University and a 7-2 dual meet win over Joliet.

First the good news. Sue Kelly, Cathy Aldana, Anita Jay and Colleen Maynard posted singles victories to pace the Hawks in their win over Joliet.

Kelly handled Diane Vidmar at No. 1 singles 6-3, 7-5, Aldana whipped Sue Carey at No. 2 singles 7-5, 6-2, Jay topped Jan Kale at No. 3 singles 6-2, 6-0 and Maynard beat Karen Storey 6-3, 6-2 in her No. 6 singles match.

All three Harper's doubles teams were successful in their final dual meet of the season. Dianne DeWitt and Amy Redeen triumphed at No. 1 doubles with a 6-3, 6-3 win over Kim Tribble and Kole. At No. 2 doubles a fresh matchup of Carol Hopkins and Anita Jay defeated Storey and Karen Tuskey 7-5, 6-4 while another new duo, Maggie McCormack and Karla Karaffa, beat Marsha-Kapsch and Cathy Petric 6-3, 6-2 at No. 3 doubles.

Twenty two-and four-year colleges were entered in the state tournament at Eastern on Friday and Saturday

World Series

Cincinnati, (UPI) — Joe Morgan, the little man who plays like a giant, climaxed a homer-filled shootout with a bases-loaded single with one out in the 10th inning Tuesday night to give the Cincinnati Reds a 6-5 victory over the Boston Red Sox and the lead in the World Series, two games to one.

Cincinnati now needs just two more victories in the best-of-seven series to win its first world championship since 1940.

Morgan, expected to win National League most valuable player honors this season, delivered his game-winning hit off reliever Roger Moret after the Reds had taken advantage of a throwing error by the usually reliable Red Sox catcher, Carlton Fisk.

Fisk set the stage for the Reds' winning rally when he threw pinch-hitter George Armbrister's sacrifice bunt attempt into centerfield on what looked like a sure double play opportunity.

Cesar Geronimo had opened the inning with a single and wound up at third on the error with Armbrister taking second. Pete Rose then was given an intentional pass to load the bases and, after Moret struck out pinch-hitter Merv Rettenmund, Morgan slammed a pitch over the head of Fred Lynn in center to score Geronimo with the winning run.

Prior to Morgan's 10th inning heroics, the game had been highlighted by a record-tying home run barrage. Each team hit three home runs, with Johnny Bench, Dave Concepcion and Cesar Geronimo connecting for the Reds and Fisk, Bernie Carbo and Dwight Evans belting homers for Boston. Carbo's homer was only the 11th pinch-hit homer in World Series history.

The Reds appeared to have won the game in the ninth inning but some questionable strategy on the part of Manager Sparky Anderson enabled the Red Sox to tie the score. Reliever Will McEnaney, the fourth Reds' pitcher, struck out Fred Lynn to open the inning but gave up a single to Rich Burleson.

Anderson, known as "Captain Hook" because of the way he yanks pitchers so quickly, then summoned Rawly Eastwick, who immediately was tagged for a game-tying homer by Evans.

It was the Red Sox who launched the home run derby when Fisk led off the second inning with a homer off starter Gary Nolan to give Boston a 1-0 lead. And, for a while it appeared that fun was all Red Sox' starter Rick Wise would need.

Wise, who had no-hit the Reds at Riverfront Stadium in 1971, when he was with the Philadelphia Phillies, did not allow a hit over the first three innings and had retired the first two batters in the fourth before a walk to Tony Perez led to his undoing.

Perez, not known for his baserunning ability, surprised the Red Sox by stealing second. It was only the second steal for the big first baseman this season, the other coming on the tailend of a double steal in the next-to-last game of the regular season.

Apparently unnerved by the stolen base, Wise grooved a fat pitch to Bench who drove it 400 feet into the left-centerfield stands for his third career World Series' homer to give the Reds a 2-1 lead.

Wise managed to get out of the inning without further damage but the Reds treated him like a batting practice pitcher in the fifth.

Concepcion led off with a homer over the left-field fence and Geronimo followed with another blast over the rightfield fence, marking the first time back-to-back homers had been hit in a World Series by a National League team.

After Darcy struck out, Rose unloaded a long drive over the head of Lynn in centerfield for a triple and scored the final run of the inning on a sacrifice fly by Morgan.

Pirate golfers take 2nd straight crown

by KEITH REINHARD
Golf Editor

"It helps ease the pain a little bit," smiled Bill Schultz, Palatine golf coach.

He was admiring the Mid-Suburban League golf trophy, a handsome piece of hardware that his charges had just captured Tuesday. It will form a matching set with the one annexed just about a year ago under similar circumstances.

And Schultz was talking about the title in terms of another prize that slipped away. "The kids needed this one after failing to qualify as a team for the sectionals. They came so close . . . and they saw so many other teams of comparative abilities make the cut. This one at least allows us to finish the season on a happy note."

The Pirates were actually bettered Thursday at Buffalo Grove Golf Club by one of those squads still alive in the state tourney. Prospect, led by the sizzling medalist performance of Paul Moats, fired a 311 to edge out Palatine by three strokes for tournament honors. But like last year at Mount Prospect Country Club when the Knights claimed top meet prize but still lost to Schultz's gang for over-all MSL laurels, George Bork's group came up shy of the mark again in 1975.

With the competition for team honors pretty much cut and dried, the spotlight focused heavily on the battle for individual medals . . . a skirmish that involved a crop of surprise contenders. Following Moats were Palatine's regular aces, Mike Sievers at 73 and Nick Zambole at 74.

After that, however, a host of 77s pushed some of the favored golfers including defending medalist Ed Stubbs of Hersey, Knight sharpshooter Scott Spielmann and Buffalo Grove soph whiz Mike Marshall, down the ladder.

There were half a dozen who tied at 77. After the playoffs it was Conant's Randy Severinsen snagging the fourth place ribbon, Huskie Kevin Krahn pulling up fifth, Joe Husar of Hoffman Estates notching sixth, Ken Miller of hosting Rolling Meadows earning seventh, Wheeling's Dave Rice claiming eighth and Tom Martindale of Forest View finishing ninth.

Four others tied for 10th at 78, with

Perennial powerhouse Lake County swept off with top honors at the 13-team gathering held at the Wedgewood layout in Joliet. The state gathering will also be conducted on this course Oct. 24-25.

Other golfing action Tuesday had St. Viator placing third at the Suburban Catholic North conference meet while Fremd, sparked by Win Bruning, swept off with championship honors at the Mid-Suburban's frosh-soph tournament.

Full details of these meets will appear in Thursday's Herald.

North, Bastable enjoy sparkling efforts

by KEITH REINHARD

A gangly colt and a human dynamo.

Those are a couple of the more descriptive phrases issued this week by North Division coaches on the subject of two of the finest pass receivers in the area.

Arlington's Tom North and Buffalo Grove's George Bastable enjoyed outstanding efforts over the past weekend and now rank 1-2 in total receptions, reception yardage and pass touchdowns, according to six-game overall statistics compiled for the Paddock area and released today.

North, a 6-3 junior, pulled in three touchdown passes at Wheeling Friday to all but turn back Wheeling singlehandedly. His mentor, Chuck Haines, recalled bringing him up to the varsity last fall in the middle of his sophomore year, saying: "We needed someone who could catch the ball and Tom was our nominee, even though we knew it would mean converting him from a running back."

The coaching staff looked on him as a gangling colt . . . a thoroughbred perhaps . . . but a very young one all the same.

"Tom is still maturing physically," Haines said.

"We feel hehas the tools to develop into one of the all-time standout receivers at Arlington . . . elusiveness . . . deceptive speed . . . and most of all, excellent hands."

George Bastable

Not to mention brains. North ranks right at the top of his class academically. Of course his job is made that much easier by having an astute athlete on the other end of the aerial maneuver and North's partner, Matt Shaughnessy, hasn't been doing all that bad himself.

Senior Shaughnessy has taken over the area leadership in passing yardage (777) and touchdown passes thrown (nine). Meanwhile North has now accrued five TDs for the campaign to also move into the local scoring ranks as well.

Over at Buffalo Grove last Saturday, spirits weren't as high after the game. The Bison had dropped a heartbreaker to Hersey. But even the verdict couldn't cloud over a dazzling performance by the 5-11 senior Bastable.

The two-way Grove veteran hauled in seven passes including one for a touchdown while virtually sitting down and another in the late going with no less than four defenders closing in on him."

"I know he looks great on some of his receptions, but George usually looks even better on the ones he misses," Bison coach Grant Blaney chuckled. "Sometimes they're 10 feet over his head or 10 yards down the field ahead of him but you can still count on George to try for them."

That's when Blaney hit on the dynamo comparison. "He's low key in school, gets along with everybody, students of all types, faculty, administrators, and he just fires up when he gets out on the football field.

"George is also the second leading tackler on our team," the coach continued. "That's probably not supposed to be a good defensive trait, since he's a safety. But there's just no stopping him . . . he's all over the field."

Bastable, like North, can give some of the credit for his high reception marks to the guy on the other end of the pass. Buffalo Grove quarterback Brian Zimmer connected for over 200 yards through the air last week and has moved up into second place on the area passing list at 716.

Among the leading signal callers, Zimmer also has the excellent distinction of owning the lowest interception rate . . . just one for every 36 attempts.

While North, Bastable, Shaughnessy and Zimmer make their moves to command top posts along the air ways, Palatine's Jim Popp continues to rule the turf. He now has a whopping 300-yard advantage over the next leading area rusher (Schaumburg's Russ Zonca) as he nears the magic 1,000 mark.

Popp has also assumed the leadership in scoring although in this department, the race is extremely tight. Just two points separate him from Bison Ben Orcutt and Zonca has moved to within four of the lead.

Bears 'fire' Gunn, sign Virgil Carter

The Chicago Bears Tuesday announced they have signed Virgil Carter, veteran quarterback they once released in a dispute over team performance, and released veteran linebacker Jimmy Gunn. Carter, 29, was with the Bears in 1968 and 1969. He moved to Cincinnati after a season in which he was critical of the Bears' performance, and played there two years, sat out 1973, and played in 1974 with the Chicago Fire of the World Football League until sidelined with an injury.

He caught on with the San Diego Chargers in 1974; then the Chargers signed Bobby Douglass, on whom the Bears gave up, and released Carter. He got an immediate tryout with the Bears.

The Bears said they will give linebacker Carl Gresbach, a six-year veteran who played seven games with San Diego last season, a tryout this week. He was released on waivers by the Chargers the past summer. Only 18 men from the 1974 Bears' squad remain on Coach Jack Pardee's present roster.

Cuban sprinter in freak fall

The United States track and field team struck back at the Pan American Games Tuesday in Mexico City by winning three of six finals, but the drama came when Cuba's Silvio Leonard fell headlong into the stadium moat after winning the 100 meter dash. With the marksmen continuing to shoot straight and true for three of a possible four gold medals, the United States kept pace with Cuba in the chase for overall victory.

U.S. track victories were gained by defending 3,000 meter steeplechase champion Mike Manley of Eugene, Ore., James King of San Diego in the 400 meter intermediate hurdles and Pamela Jiles in the women's 100 meter dash.

Leonard was so excited after winning that he continued running before falling about 15 feet into the trackside moat, something that is standard equipment at all Latin stadiums to keep exciteable fans at bay. He received injuries to his right leg with bruises all over his body.

Illinois State picks Ferguson

Ron Ferguson Tuesday was named assistant athletic director and assistant basketball coach at Illinois State University, ending a 15-year career at Thornridge High School in Dolton. Ferguson coached two state championship basketball teams at Thornridge, 31-1 in 1971 and 33-0 in 1972.

NBA czar makes Wilt free agent

Wilt Chamberlain has been declared a free agent by NBA Commissioner Lawrence O'Brien Tuesday, allowing the former Los Angeles star to negotiate with the New York Knicks. The 7-foot-1, 39-year-old center hasn't played for two years . . .

The Milwaukee Bucks released veterans Steve Kuberski and George Thompson. Kuberski was a six-year veteran from the University of Illinois . . .

O.J. Simpson of Buffalo leads the National Football League with 697 yards in 118 carries. Tops in the college ranks is Southern California's Ricky Bell. After five games he carried 151 times for 940 yards . . .

and the Hawks pulled a seventh place finish out of the fire as the championship went to the University of Illinois with Western and Southern Illinois Universities tying for second place.

"I kept telling my team we were going to be seeing and playing a different type of tennis," said Harper coach Martha Bolt. "It's a much better brand of tennis but although we didn't finish as high as we'd like I still think it was a good educational experience for the girls to play and watch."

Sue Kelly reached the quarter finals of the No. 1 singles division, posting a first round win over Augustana's Krytel 6-1, 6-1 and getting a default through the second round.

Cathy Aldana lost in the first round of No. 2 singles to Lynn Edwards of Wheaton 6-1, 6-1.

The No. 1 doubles team of Dianne DeWitt and Amy Redeen triumphed in the first round over Elgin's Mickleditz and Newman 6-1, 6-0 but lost in the second round to Deem and Winsauer of Southern Illinois 6-2, 6-1.

Carol Hopkins and Karla Karaffa lost their first round match in No. 2 doubles to Johnson and MacKencie of Principia 6-2, 6-0.

Harper will defend their junior college state title at Sauk Valley College in Dixon this Friday and Saturday.

Arlington's Jeff Gutowsky nudging out Marshall, Knight Mike Dee and Fremd's Will Garcia for kudos.

Prospect's 311 Tuesday included 81s by Spielmann and Pete Lund to go with Dee's 78 and the stellar one-under 35-36 showing by Moats.

Palatine added an 80 by Mike Carroll and an 87 by Kevin McKenna to go with the showings of Zambole and Sievers for 314. Hersey, which had tied with Prospect for second in the dual meet standings, slipped to fourth overall after finishing fifth in the tourney with a 320.

Buffalo Grove meanwhile moved up to third over-all with a 318 for third in the meet and Forest View slipped in ahead of the Huskies Tuesday at 319 to move up from a seventh place tie in the dual meet rankings to fifth overall.

The hosting Mustangs also moved up (from 12th in the dual meet standings to 11th overall) by capturing a ninth place finish in the tourney. Highlighting their showing in addition to Miller's nifty round was a hole-in-one by Brett Burkhardt on the fourth hole.

Full results of the tournament and final standings will appear in Thursday's Herald.

Youth was served in the fifth week of the Herald's Pick the Winners contest and Oct. 13 proved to be a big day for Mike Chernicky of 517 N. Winston in Palatine.

In addition to celebrating his ninth birthday and rolling a 104 at his birthday bowling party, Mike also picked all but one of the 19 games correctly to become the youngest winner in the contest's history.

Mike Chernicky

Mike, fittingly, wants to be a football player when he grows up. His father Steve is an assistant football and head baseball coach at Hersey High School. It's possible that Mike's dad had a hand in one of his selections because the winning entry had Buffalo Grove checked and then scratched out in favor of the Huskies.

Mike went into the tiebreaker knotted with Al Otto of Elk Grove and Mike Guilford of Arlington Heights and won the radio and a chance at the grand prize of a trip to the Rose Bowl by coming closest to the total number of points scored between the Bears and Detroit, as well as picking the Lions as winners.

Mike, a fourth grader at Lake Louise School in Palatine, missed only the Atlanta-San Francisco game.

The results of the week's card at the high school level was as follows: Prospect 13, Elk Grove 6; Rolling Meadows 14, Forest View 7; Arlington 24, Wheeling 10; Palatine 35, Fremd 16; St. Viator 41, Carmel 19; Maine West 9, Niles North 7; Hoffman Estates 14, Conant 6; Hersey 28, Buffalo Grove 21 (2 ots.); Schaumburg 42, Elmwood Park 14.

Harper clobbered Thornton 31-0 at the junior college level.

The college games turned out this way: Oklahoma 24, Texas 17; Tennessee 24, LSU 10; Northwestern 30, Indiana 0; Navy 10, Syracuse 6; Michigan 16, Michigan State 6.

In the pro ranks: New Orleans 20, Green Bay 19; Atlanta 17, San Francisco 3; Houston 40, Cleveland 10; Cincinnati 27, New England 10; Detroit 27, Chicago 7.

Dramatic golf finish at Mount Prospect

The Eighth Annual Mount Prospect Invitational Golf Tournament recently finished play dramatically in darkness without a clearcut winner.

Ninety-two golfers forming 23 teams began play in the annual 36 hole best ball team effort. Each golfer played at 80 per cent of his official U.S.G.A. handicap in an attempt to master the tricky 6100 yard Mount Prospect Country Club layout.

After the scores were tallied, the team of Tom Piazza, John DeMaret, Ken Willert and Frank Hoff completed play at 23 under par. This was good enough to tie them for first place with a team made up of Ed Ayers, Chuck Ruggiero, Keith Felder and Phil Jeuck.

The tournament format called for sudden death play in the event of a tie.

Both Ruggiero and Ayers missed short birdie putts on the 500 yard par five hole which would have clinched victory for their team.

Ken Willert, under tremendous pressure, ran in a down-hill 15 foot putt for his team which forced all eight players to go to the second tee, a 450 yard par four.

Piazza kept his team in the running by tapping in a one-foot putt for even par while Ayers played the hero's role for his team by coming out of the rough to within 10 feet of the hole and making a tricky side-hill putt.

As darkness enveloped the course, the players went to the 18th tee for one final attempt to break the tie.

Once again, one player from each team assumed the hero's role. DeMaret and Willert both made crucial putts to hold par. The Tournament Committee headed up by Chuck Lynch of Mount Prospect had no alternative but to declare both teams as winners with prizes awarded accordingly.

Players from Mount Prospect dominated the field but Park Ridge, Arlington Heights, Palatine and Des Plaines were also well represented. Out of staters playing in the 1975 event came from Maryland, Connecticut, New Jersey, Michigan and Minnesota.

In addition to General Chairman Lynch, Tournament Committee members included Don Campbell, Ed Nixon, George Wells, Jim Moran and Dick Coleman.

Bears 'fire' Gunn, sign Virgil Carter

The Chicago Bears Tuesday announced they have signed Virgil Carter, veteran quarterback they once released in a dispute over team performance, and released veteran linebacker Jimmy Gunn. Carter, 29, was with the Bears in 1968 and 1969. He moved to Cincinnati after a season in which he was critical of the Bears' performance, and played there two years, sat out 1973, and played in 1974 with the Chicago Fire of the World Football League until sidelined with an injury.

He caught on with the San Diego Chargers in 1974; then the Chargers signed Bobby Douglass, on whom the Bears gave up, and released Carter. He got an immediate tryout with the Bears.

The Bears said they will give linebacker Carl Gresbach, a six-year veteran who played seven games with San Diego last season, a tryout this week. He was released on waivers by the Chargers the past summer. Only 18 men from the 1974 Bears' squad remain on Coach Jack Pardee's present roster.

Pardee began onfield drills with seven players missing. Wide receiver Ron Shanklin needs further tests on an injured left knee and is doubtful. Starting possibilities for the Pittsburgh Steelers' game next Sunday are questionable for Nehmiah Wilson and Mel Tom, and Walter Payton, rookie running back, is among four others nursing injuries but regarded as probably getting into action.

Cuban sprinter in freak fall

The United States track and field team struck back at the Pan American Games Tuesday in Mexico City by winning three of six finals, but the drama came when Cuba's Silvio Leonard fell headlong into the stadium moat after winning the 100 meter dash. With the marksmen continuing to shoot straight and true for three of a possible four gold medals, the United States kept pace with Cuba in the chase for overall victory.

U.S. track victories were gained by defending 3,000 meter steeplechase champion Mike Manley of Eugene, Ore., James King of San Diego in the 400 meter intermediate hurdles and Pamela Jiles in the women's 100 meter dash.

Leonard was so excited after winning that he continued running before falling about 15 feet into the trackside moat, something that is standard equipment at all Latin stadiums to keep exciteable fans at bay. He received injuries to his right leg with bruises all over his body.

Illinois State picks Ferguson

Ron Ferguson Tuesday was named assistant athletic director and assistant basketball coach at Illinois State University, ending a 15-year career at Thornridge High School in Dolton. Ferguson coached two state championship basketball teams at Thornridge, 31-1 in 1971 and 33-0 in 1972.

NBA czar makes Wilt free agent

Wilt Chamberlain has been declared a free agent by NBA Commissioner Lawrence O'Brien Tuesday, allowing the former Los Angeles star to negotiate with the New York Knicks. The 7-foot-1, 39-year-old center hasn't played for two years . . .

The Milwaukee Bucks released veterans Steve Kuberski and George Thompson. Kuberski was a six-year veteran from the University of Illinois . . .

and the Hawks pulled a seventh place finish out of the fire as the championship went to the University of Illinois with Western and Southern Illinois Universities tying for second place.

"I kept telling my team we were going to be seeing and playing a different type of tennis," said Harper coach Martha Bolt. "It's a much better brand of tennis but although we didn't finish as high as we'd like I still think it was a good educational experience for the girls to play and watch."

Sue Kelly reached the quarter finals of the No. 1 singles division, posting a first round win over Augustana's Krytel 6-1, 6-1 and getting a default through the second round.

Kelly fell to the eventual champion, Jean Coverly of Western Illinois, in the quarterfinals 6-0, 7-5.

Cathy Aldana lost in the first round of No. 2 singles to Lynn Edwards of Wheaton 6-1, 6-1.

The No. 1 doubles team of Dianne DeWitt and Amy Redeen triumphed in the first round over Elgin's Mickleditz and Newman 6-1, 6-0 but lost in the second round to Deem and Winsauer of Southern Illinois 6-2, 6-1.

Carol Hopkins and Karla Karaffa lost their first round match in No. 2 doubles to Johnson and MacKencie of Principia 6-2, 6-0.

Harper will defend their junior college state title at Sauk Valley College in Dixon this Friday and Saturday.

Palatine added an 80 by Mike Carroll and an 87 by Kevin McKenna to go with the showings of Zambole and Sievers for 314. Hersey, which had tied with Prospect for second in the dual meet standings, slipped to fourth overall after finishing fifth in the tourney with a 320.

America's dog hero of the year

A German Shepherd who risked a rattlesnake bite to save the life of a 3-year-old boy was honored on Oct. 1 as America's Dog Hero of the Year.

For performing the most heroic life-saving act of the year, Fawn, a purebred 4-year-old German Shepherd, was given the Ken-L Ration Gold Medal at a banquet sponsored by the Quaker Oats Co., Chicago, producers of Ken-L Ration dog food.

Owned by Mr. and Mrs. William Schlesinger, St. Petersburg, Fla., Fawn is credited with keeping the Schlesinger's grandson, Russ Schoenberger, out of the path of a rattlesnake.

The unusual part of the story is that the dog was on a screened porch with the Schlesingers, far from the youngster who was playing in the yard.

Apparently sensing the danger, Fawn pushed a screen door open and ran to battle wit the snake, pushing the boy to the ground and fighting with the rattler. Fawn suffered a snake bite and the effects lasted four weeks.

The Schlesingers, the dog and the boy attended the 22nd annual Dog Hero banquet at the Hunt Valley Inn, Hunt Valley, Md., and received the medal, a $1,000 U.S. savings bond, a gold-plated collar and leash and a year's supply of Ken-L Ration dog food.

Old English match—

The Chicagoland Old English Sheepdog Club is holding a Class "A" match and a puppy fun match on Sunday, Oct. 26, at Frontier Park, 1933 N. Kennicott, Arlington Heights.

Open to Old English Sheepdogs, entries for both events close on Oct. 18. Information about both the puppy fun match and the regular class "A" match may be had by contacting Mrs. Grace Fujikawa, 381 Fairview Ave., Winnetka, Ill., 60093, or you may call 620-0083 or 446-7381.

Special place —

Both a puppy and a youngster should should be taught that there is a special place in the house where the pup can go to be alone.

A crate, a dog bed, a corner or a spot under a table should be reserved for the pup and the child should be taught to respect the dog's right to solitude. This practice can help avoid situations which might force the pup to become aggressive in self defense.

Barks & Bays—

In the last column we asked what two breeds of dogs have the names of countries in their names but did not originate in those countries? The answer: The Labrador Retriever was created in Newfoundland and perfected in England and the Great Dane was originated in Germany.

America's dog hero of the year

A German Shepherd who risked a rattlesnake bite to save the life of a 3-year-old boy was honored on Oct. 1 as America's Dog Hero of the Year.

For performing the most heroic life-saving act of the year, Fawn, a purebred 4-year-old German Shepherd, was given the Ken-L Ration Gold Medal at a banquet sponsored by the Quaker Oats Co., Chicago, producers of Ken-L Ration dog food.

Owned by Mr. and Mrs. William Schlesinger, St. Petersburg, Fla., Fawn is credited with keeping the Schlesinger's grandson, Russ Schoenberger, out of the path of a rattlesnake.

The unusual part of the story is that the dog was on a screened porch with the Schlesingers, far from the youngster who was playing in the yard.

Apparently sensing the danger, Fawn pushed a screen door open and ran to battle wit the snake, pushing the boy to the ground and fighting with the rattler. Fawn suffered a snake bite and the effects lasted four weeks.

The Schlesingers, the dog and the boy attended the 22nd annual Dog Hero banquet at the Hunt Valley Inn, Hunt Valley, Md., and received the medal, a $1,000 U.S. savings bond, a gold-plated collar and leash and a year's supply of Ken-L Ration dog food.

Old English match—

The Chicagoland Old English Sheepdog Club is holding a Class "A" match and a puppy fun match on Sunday, Oct. 26, at Frontier Park, 1933 N. Kennicott, Arlington Heights.

Open to Old English Sheepdogs, entries for both events close on Oct. 18. Information about both the puppy fun match and the regular class "A" match may be had by contacting Mrs. Grace Fujikawa, 381 Fairview Ave., Winnetka, Ill., 60093, or you may call 620-0083 or 446-7381.

Special place —

Both a puppy and a youngster should should be taught that there is a special place in the house where the pup can go to be alone.

A crate, a dog bed, a corner or a spot under a table should be reserved for the pup and the child should be taught to respect the dog's right to solitude. This practice can help avoid situations which might force the pup to become aggressive in self defense.

Barks & Bays—

In the last column we asked what two breeds of dogs have the names of countries in their names but did not originate in those countries? The answer: The Labrador Retriever was created in Newfoundland and perfected in England and the Great Dane was originated in Germany.

Harper 2nd in Milwaukee

Harper's second-place finish in the Milwaukee Invitational cross country meet Saturday augurs well for coach Bob Nolan and his Hawks.

"This will help us in terms of confidence," said Nolan, whose team has been improving with every meet.

"We finished ahead of DuPage and we were right behind Lake County—well, not right behind them, but it has got to help us."

Lake County won the 13-team meet, hosted by Milwaukee Tech, with 46 points as the Lancers captured first, third and fourth places. The winner was Chuck Wilson in 27:14.

Harper finished with 92 points, paced by Rich Reithal's fifth-place performance (27:35) and Bob Borucki's 12th spot (28:15).

"That's the best ever that Borucki's run," Nolan noted.

His sophomore harrier from Holy Cross High School is improving every week. Two other runners who have taken big strides for the Hawks are Steve Erickson and John Messinger, both out of Wheeling High School.

Erickson was 16th (28:29) and Messinger 24th (29:54) at Milwaukee, just ahead of teammate Dave Adler in 35th place (30:21). Dennis Fagan was sixth man for Harper in 38th place, and freshman Mike Hommowun, hampered by an ankle injury, was 47th.

"We know Hommowun can run better than that," Nolan said. "But after a couple of miles the leg started bothering him."

The Hawks will run in the DuPage Invite this Saturday in preparation for the Region IV Meet the following weekend. Then the N4C conference meet is slated Nov. 1.

"I think we'll be ready for those meets," said Nolan, whose squad showed at Milwaukee that they can run well in the big ones.

Huge mill-direct discounts in hundreds of closeouts, surplus items, remnants and mill trials.

Plywood Minnesota does it again! This time we bought 46 truckloads of carpeting in the Dalton, Georgia area (70% of all the carpeting in the world is manufactured there.) The mills tell us "Nobody else buys in this large a quantity." This means each warehouse buys in carload lots. It illustrates once again how Plywood Minnesota's 48 warehouse buying power works to bring the lowest possible carpet prices to you year-round.

Many at $3.99 and $2.99 .. Some low as $1.99 per sq. yd. All prices reflect real bargains, but we know the low-priced items will move out fast.

Harper 2nd in Milwaukee

Harper's second-place finish in the Milwaukee Invitational cross country meet Saturday augurs well for coach Bob Nolan and his Hawks.

"This will help us in terms of confidence," said Nolan, whose team has been improving with every meet.

"We finished ahead of DuPage and we were right behind Lake County—well, not right behind them, but it has got to help us."

Lake County won the 13-team meet, hosted by Milwaukee Tech, with 46 points as the Lancers captured first, third and fourth places. The winner was Chuck Wilson in 27:14.

Harper finished with 92 points, paced by Rich Reithal's fifth-place performance (27:35) and Bob Borucki's 12th spot (28:15).

"That's the best ever that Borucki's run," Nolan noted.

His sophomore harrier from Holy Cross High School is improving every week. Two other runners who have taken big strides for the Hawks are Steve Erickson and John Messinger, both out of Wheeling High School.

Erickson was 16th (28:29) and Messinger 24th (29:54) at Milwaukee, just ahead of teammate Dave Adler in 55th place (30:21). Dennis Fagan was sixth man for Harper in 38th place, and freshman Mike Hommowun, hampered by an ankle injury, was 47th.

"We know Hommowun can run better than that," Nolan said. "But after a couple of miles the leg started bothering him."

The Hawks will run in the DuPage Invite this Saturday in preparation for the Region IV Meet the following weekend. Then the N4C conference meet is slated Nov. 1.

"I think we'll be ready for those meets," said Nolan, whose squad showed at Milwaukee that they can run well in the big ones.

Xenon — the earth's rarest gas

WHY IS XENON CALLED INERT?

The word xenon means the stranger, and inert means downright lazy. Xenon is the rarest of all the gases in the air, so certainly the name stranger seems fair enough. In chemistry, the term inert means unable to combine with other elements to form molecule compounds. For a time, xenon was thought to be chemically inert — but now we know that this is not quite true.

When ordinary air is measured by volume, 78 per cent of the gaseous mixture is nitrogen and 21 per cent is oxygen. This leaves about 1 per cent of the remaining space to be shared by rare gases, water vapor and various pollutants.

Six of the rare gases are classed together as a family of chemical elements. Their chemical behavior is similar because of the structure of their electronic shells. An atom's electrons are arranged in shells, somewhat like inner and outer traffic lanes. The number of electrons equals the number of protons in the nucleus. And each shell requires so many electrons to fill it.

In most elements, the outer shell is incomplete. The problem may be solved by sharing electrons with similar atoms, which then merge and form molecules of chemical compounds. This is called chemical activity. But an atom with a complete outer shell has no call to beg, borrow or swap electrons. Hence it tends to be chemically inactive, or inert.

The six rare gases in the atmosphere are helium and neon, krypton and radon, argon, which is the least rare, and xenon which is the rarest. The normal atoms of all these elements have complete outer electron shells. The single helium shell is complete with two electrons. Each of the other five has a complete outer electron shell of eight.

Most of these rare gases were discovered in the 1890s, when scientists assumed that they would not or could not combine with any other elements at all.

Then in 1962, Canadian researchers found that xenon can be coaxed to combine with a fluoride compound. Since then, other rare gases have been combined to form several chemical compounds.

Xenon is so rare that there is only about one atom among 20 million atoms and molecules in ordinary air. It can be separated as other gases are evaporated one by one from liquid air. This concentrated xenon is used in equipment for flash photography and other high-intensity light systems. It also is used to create those miraculous light beams called lasers.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Scott Nestor, age 7, of Charleston, W. Va., for his question:

WHERE DO TORNADOS START?

Tornados can happen anywhere in the world. But most of them strike in our Midwest states. The whole thing begins when certain winds meet in the cloudy sky. Often there are patches of blue among the ragged gray clouds. Then here and there, warm and cool winds tangle together. Around they spin, twisting a fistful of cloud into a dark funnel. The funnel dips down like a dangling finger. This is the start of a tornado.

Other dark funnels may dip down from nearby clouds. Most of them dangle for a while and then fade away. But once in a while, one of them dips right down and touches the ground. Then the terrible tornado strikes, tearing up trees and bashing down buildings. The sudden tornado is soon over. When it strikes a town, many people are left homeless, injured and some may be killed.

East could have set the wily Sherlock

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

Sherlock Holmes bid his full values and a little extra with today's hand. West opened the king of hearts. East studied carefully, overtook West's king and led back her singleton club.

This brilliant play forced Holmes to adopt extraordinary measures. He cashed his king of diamonds, overtook his queen with dummy's ace and carefully discarded his last heart when East put her jack of diamonds on dummy's 10. East led a heart but it was all over. Holmes ruffed, knocked out the ace of trumps, ruffed the next heart, drew the last trumps and claimed.

Betty Castle, sitting East, had played brilliantly, but not quite brilliantly enough. The club shift was fine, but when she got in with the jack of diamonds she could have led a fourth diamond and cooked Holmes goose.

He would have been forced to ruff high to shut out West's nine. That would take care of one of his honors. He would have had to lead a second one. Betty would win that trick and lead a fifth diamond. Holmes would have to ruff high again and West's nine of trumps would have become a sure winner.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

BALL CONTROL. The pigskin is very definitely in the possession of Fremd's Tom Philippe, who rambles for a sizable gain against Palatine. But the game ball went to the crosstown rival Pirates who overcame a couple of mistakes to post a 35-16 win, setting up this week's Hersey showdown.
